American Held by Brigands Declares Bandits Will Forfeit Lives to Make Threat Good.

LETTER FROM PRIEST STRESSES SITUATION

Declares Bandits Sullen and Suspicious—Chinese Government Accused of Breaking Faith.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Shanghai, May 18.—Unless the foreign powers unite in forcing the Chinese government to realize that the Szechow bandits are ready to forfeit their own lives and those of their captives in their determination to have their demands met "we are doomed," was the word received here tonight from Leon Friedman, one of the Americans held in the Pootzuk stronghold of the brigands.

Friedman's letter, which painted a pitiful picture of the captives' condition, has stirred public feeling in Shanghai. The China Press, an American newspaper, backed by a number of prominent Americans, has called a mass meeting for Sunday for the purpose of making urgent representations to Washington.

The meeting, it is expected, will point out the necessity of the powers guaranteeing that the promises made by the Peking government to the brigands will be kept.

Alarmed for Safety.

Foreigners here and in other cities in China are becoming increasingly alarmed for the safety of the prisoners held in Pootzuk and the situation is almost the sole topic of conversation in all foreign circles.

Following is Leon Friedman's letter:

"We have no holding nor cooking utensils and are compelled to sleep on the ground. Conditions really are terrible.

"Some of the captives purposely sent out reassuring letters during the day."

FIRST PEACHES
SHIPPED TO N. Y.
FROM REYNOLDS

Macon, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—The first car of Georgia peaches for this season passed through Macon today by express, consigned to Robert Cochran & Sons, New York. The crate contained the Mayflower variety, the earliest in Georgia, and was shipped by E. E. Payne, of Reynolds, Ga.

Reports from Reynolds indicate that dilly crate shipments will be made from now on until carload shipments begin to move. Reynolds will ship approximately 375 cars this season.

The first car of peaches will probably be handled through Macon by Friday of next week.

Last year on this date 11 cars of peaches had been shipped from Georgia and two years ago 150 cars had moved out of the peach belt.

The cold weather of this spring and the freeze of March 19 and 20 delayed this year's crop.

The Georgia Fruit exchange will open an office in Macon next Monday.

President Will Not Engage in Controversy With Opponents Over International Court.

BY LOUIS SEIBOLD.
(Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

Washington, May 18.—President Harding does not propose to be goaded into an immediate controversy over his league of nations high court proposal by the attacks of the opposition.

It was announced at the white house on behalf of the president today that he will not enter into a continuous long distance discussion over the court project, which will not come before the senate until next winter. This statement is not interpreted as meaning that attacks on it have affected his confidence in the proposal.

Advocates and critics of the scheme which the president and Secretary Hughes hold to be essential to the permanent establishment of peace throughout the world neither predict nor expect lack of enthusiasm on the part of Mr. Harding or Mr. Hughes, despite the fact that many republican leaders question the wisdom of the court proposal. Opponents of the plan seemingly do not accept the presidential view that a truce should be called in the controversy until the proposal comes up for discussion in the senate.

Fussillade of Criticism.

The opposition intends to direct a steady fusillade of criticism against the president and his official supporters for reasons dictated by motives which are admitted to be quite as sincere as those employed in support of the court plan. Enthusiasm is likewise displayed by the republican leaders who regret Mr. Harding's projection of the one issue which, they assert, will seriously affect the morale of his party.

On one point the critics of the league of nations court project unite in commending the president. This was in going to the senate in advance of committing the government to the venture in any way. Harding's method of inviting senatorial approval of prospective treaty undertakings was employed by several presidents, including Washington, Monroe, Polk, Buchanan and Lincoln.

The chief regret of many leaders in Bodies So Badly Burned That Identification Was Impossible—Appeal for Help Made.

BY A. D. FAIRBAIRN.

Camden, S. C., May 18.—(By Association Press.)—Bathed in the glory of a setting South Carolina sun, 62 bodies, that less than twenty-four hours before had been fun-loving men, women and children, late today were placed in one big grave in Buleah Methodist churchyard. Three thousand South Carolinians, led by Governor Thomas G. McLeod, gathered from all parts of the state to pay a last tribute to those who had perished in the burning of the Cleveland school house last night, stood with bare heads throughout the brief, simple funeral service.

The bodies were those out of the at least 73 dead which could not be identified. They were buried within a few hundred yards of the spot where, on last night they had gathered for commencement exercises of the community school and where an oil lamp, dashed from its hanger on the ceiling over the auditorium stage had turned the little country school into a funeral pyre.

Tears in Many Eyes.

Tears stood in the eyes of many. Strong men wept, many holding in their arms little tots orphaned by the fire, some of them sleeping. Barked high with flowers the freshly made grave, 40 by 12 feet in dimension, showed in solemn beauty the quiet peace of those who a scant 24 hours before were planning with joyous anticipation the visit to the little schoolhouse to see the comedy playlet, "Miss Topsy Turvy," presented as part of the commencement exercises of the Cleveland graded school.

"Abide With Me," sang the choir and Rev. F. H. Harding, Episcopal clergyman of Camden, slowly let fall onto the grave small quantities of Memphis, Tenn., May 18.—Clarence Saunders, president of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., announced today that threats of injunction proceedings had halted plans he had made to sell certain units of the Piggly Wiggly chain store system to obtain funds to liquidate bank loans and retire a sufficient amount of class A stock of the company to relieve "pool" members of their holdings.

Sale of the Chicago unit, already completed, will be permitted to stand, according to the announcement made by Mr. Saunders, but negotiations for the sale of store units in other cities were forced to a standstill by threatened legal action on the part of what he described as "out of town pool interests."

FARM SCHEDULES IN TARIFF BILL
MAY BE REOPENED

Feeling in Official Circles That President Is Unable to Control Situation Despite Promise.

BY A. D. FAIRBAIRN.

Washington, May 18.—There is every probability that all the agricultural schedules in the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill will before long be opened by the tariff commission and the possibility that many of them will be revised is not by any means remote.

Although the president told Governor-elect Walker and a distinguished delegation from the south that the tariff would not be tinkered with, there is a very distinct feeling in official circles that the chief executive will not be able to control the situation. There is no doubt that he was sincere and that he meant well, but the special interests opposing the vegetable oil schedules appear to have found a way to get more or less sympathetic consideration from the tariff commission.

In seeking to have the question docketed the antagonists of the vegetable oil schedules have followed the line of least resistance. They have chosen to attack linseed oil, the product of flax seed, the flax seed men are not organized and are able to resist only as individual units, but in the aggregate there is a vast amount of flax seed produced in the United States.

Drops All Oil Prices.

"Reduce the price of flax seed and down comes the price of peanut oil, of cotton seed oil and all other oils used for manufacturing purposes, and even edible purposes," said A. M. Loomis, legislative representative of the National Dairyman's union. "The tariff commission issued a very important-looking document when it announced that a hearing would be held to determine the cost of production of flax seed and the price relations between linseed and the primary product."

The farmers and farm organizations find themselves up against the practical effects of the so-called flexible feature of the tariff bill. It was thought when the bill was passed that a way would be found to adjust tariff rates to the cost of production and Action Places France in the Pace-Setting Role in Armaments Formerly Occupied by Germany.

Inclusion of Gigantic Air Fleet in Military Policy Cases Dismay in Official Circles.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, May 18.—Great Britain is determined to avoid embarrassing France in the Ruhr; to be generous toward her in all respects and manage so that time and patience shall cure the irritation on the part of France which arose during the three years of Lloyd George's less considerate manners. But while this determination is steadily in the minds of responsible Englishmen, it is equally clear that the same class is dismayed by another aspect of the French course and is regretfully determined to take action based on this dismay.

After the war Britain demobilized her air service with the rest of her forces. France, however, expanded her air service until today she has across the channel, according to authoritative judgment, ten times as much air equipment as Britain has on her side.

Part of Military Policy.

More thoughtful Britons do not say of this, as Lord Balfour said at the Washington conference of France's submarine building, "against whom is this aimed if not against Britain?" Englishmen say it is merely part of France's general military policy.

France intends to have the greatest army in the world. If she is to have such an army at all, it must be a properly proportioned one, and the air service is merely in proportion to the rest of the army.

Duplicate Air Force.

Britain is going to spend upward of $100,000,000 to duplicate France's air force, on the familiar theory of being equal to any other one power. Britain hates to take the money. Even more, Britain hates to take a step which, following France's initiative, goes on in the old deadly cycle of competitive armament, with France in the pace-setting role that was Germany's before 1914.

Louis E. Stratton, of Missouri Alms House, Now in Soldiers' Home.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

About two weeks ago The Constitution received a communication from R. C. Friend, of Joplin, Mo., asking help in locating the war record of Louis E. Stratton, inmate of the alms house of Jasper county, Missouri, and who claimed to have been a member of a Georgia artillery unit during the war between the states. The object in securing his war record was that there might be legal authority to transfer the aged man to the Confederate Soldiers' home at Hagersville, Missouri.

The story was published and the request for information put into the hands of several agencies which, it was thought, might be able to dig up this old record.

Record Located.

Among them all the right one was finally located. It was the Georgia soldier roster commission at the state capital. The information available from Missouri was to the effect that Stratton said he had been a member

ASKS FOR REGULATION OF JITNEY TRAFFIC

Rigid Enforcement of All Traffic Laws Urged in Order to Prevent Deterioration of Service.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Painting a gloomy picture of the future of Atlanta's transportation service unless radical steps are taken to stop its rapidly growing losses, H. M. Atkinson, chairman of the board of the Georgia Railway and Power company, Friday afternoon asked and was given the unanimous endorsement of the City club of Atlanta for a program "for the improvement of transportation conditions."

This program, as outlined by Mr. Atkinson to more than 100 leading Atlanta business and professional men at the City club luncheon and long-table discussion, involved stringent regulation of jitney buses and rigid enforcement of all traffic ordinances.

Resolutions Adopted.

Mr. Atkinson addressed the club with particular reference to the petition of the company headed "Constructive Plan for Solving Present and Future Transportation Problems of Atlanta," which will be presented to council Monday. The resolutions endorsing the company's program were introduced by J. Frank Beck following Mr. Atkinson's address, were seconded by several members of the club and passed by acclamation without a dissenting vote. The resolutions follow:

"Whereas, the traffic conditions in Atlanta are such as to demand efficient and conscientious enforcement of the traffic laws and the proper regulation of said traffic; and

"Whereas, the Georgia Railway and Power company should properly be expected to provide the public with adequate and safe transportation throughout the city; and

"Whereas, in order to provide the service which the public has a right to expect, it is incumbent upon the city and the people to allow every reasonable opportunity for the development of the project.

Mexico City, May 18.—Two bomb explosions on United States government premises in Mexico City have occurred this month, the first at the American embassy on May 4, and the second today in the building housing the American consulate general. The fact of the first explosion did not become known until after the bombing at the consulate building today.

This morning's outrage occurred at 2:35 o'clock when a bomb was exploded at the side door of the consulate general, damaging the door and breaking the windows on the lower floor, but causing no casualties. The consular offices themselves were not affected, the damage occurring to the furniture and windows of the office in the consulate building occupied by a Mexican attorney.

The first explosion, it was learned, occurred at 3 o'clock on the morning of May 4 in the garden of the embassy building near the terrace, a fragment from the infernal machine clipping a chunk off the embassy building.

Washington Awaits Report.

Washington, May 18.—The bomb which exploded on the premises of the American embassy in Mexico City May 4 was hurled into the embassy garden about 3 o'clock on the morning and its explosion was so weak that it did no damage whatever, according to the brief report of the incident transmitted to the state department.

EASTER ISLAND

BENEATH WAVES

Melbourne, Aus., May 18.—A wireless message, apparently from a vessel, has been picked up here stating that Easter Island has disappeared.

Reports that Easter Island had disappeared have been prevalent since the disastrous earthquake which shook northern Chile last November. The last definite report was made by the captain of a French merchant ship who declared he found nothing but water at the position given to the island on his chart.

Easter Island, used by the Chilean government as a penal colony, is the easternmost inhabited of the Polynesian group and was remarkable for its gigantic statues and sculptured rocks, apparently the work of a prehistoric people. The population was about 1,200.

Why the Weather?
DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS,
Secretary American Meteorological
Society, says:Spring Showers
Are Different

Spring showers are characteristic of the season. They have an individuality of their own. They come at a time when the ground is still damp from the melting snows and early spring rains, and when the atmosphere at moderate heights is still cold after the winter temperatures. The warm sun of the lengthening days heats up the earth's surface, and the lower air levels become warm and moist.

The result is a sharp temperature contrast between the lower air and the atmosphere not very high above it.

The ground air expands, convection starts, and the vertical currents begin to flow, the hot air ascending as it is replaced by descending currents of cool air. The rising air expands and cools quickly, and clouds form at a low level, much lower than under similar conditions in summer.

After a while showers begin to fall. Sometimes thunderstorms are formed. A peculiarity of the spring shower is its short duration. Very often the day has alternate spells of showers and sunshine, as the clouds drop their larger particles as rain, only to be replaced by other clouds as the pumping caused by the sun's heat sets the vertical currents in motion again.

ROBBERY SUSPECTS IDENTIFIED BY VICTIM

J. D. Chambers Tells Police
W. H. Jones and J. A.
Chastain Took Car.

Identified by J. D. Chambers, of 118 South Gordon street, as the two men who posed as federal prohibition officers Thursday evening, taking his automobile and robbing a woman companion of her handbag, W. H. Jones, a mechanic, of 30 Anderson avenue, and J. A. Chastain, 29, of 245 Bellwood avenue, a groceryman, are being held without bond by detectives under a blanket charge of suspicion.

They were arrested Friday by Detectives George E. Holley and W. O. Ballard, riding in a car described to them by Chambers as the one they occupied when he was robbed Thursday evening. Chambers stated that he had known Jones for ten years, or longer, and had little difficulty in recognizing him at the time of the robbery.

"The two stopped us at Oakhurst station, on the Decatur car line, stating they were federal prohibition officers and demanding that we get out so they could search my car, which they pretended contained whisky," Chambers said. "Finding a shotgun and the other a pistol. As we got out of the car, one slipped behind the steering wheel and drove it off, while the other disappeared in the machine they came in."

Chambers also stated that when he called to Jones, as they left, the latter shot at him twice, both bullets going wild.

KIWANIS CHIEF DUE HERE TODAY FOR CONVENTION

Fred C. W. Parker, international secretary of Kiwanis clubs, will arrive in Atlanta from Chicago on the Dixie Flyer tonight to remain here until after the convention of more than 6,000 Kiwanians, who will begin assembling here within one week.

Representatives of international headquarters have had offices here for several months in preparation for the convention. Paul McCready, assistant secretary, arrived here early this week.

An important meeting of the committee of local Kiwanians in charge of the "Plantation Day" entertainment will be staged at the auditorium on Tuesday night, May 29, as one of the biggest features of the entire week.

The twenty-seventh general convention of the Scottish Rite Masons in the Valley of Atlanta came to a close last night when the Samuel Stewart Wallace, class of 1922, members advanced to the thirty-second degree and made masters of the Royal Secret.

The class assembled at the Masonic temple at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon for a visit to the Scottish Rite hospital for crippled children, the great charitable institution fostered by the Scottish Rite Masons of this valley, and which is the "mother" of the Shriners' hospitals for crippled children now being built in many states throughout the union and in Canada. A photograph of the class was made on the lawn in front of the hospital after which the members returned and assembled in the classroom of Masonic temple.

William M. Brownlee was chosen president of the class and John F. Glenn secretary-treasurer. The members of the class made a substantial free-will offering for the maintenance of the hospital, most of which was in the form of pledges of annual contributions covering a period of five years.

Many prominent Masons from various cities in the United States attended the sessions, and all were highly pleased with the excellent degree work of the staff and the splendid music of the famous Scottish Rite choir of Atlanta consistory.

Through the system of "doubling back" across their beat unexpectedly, Patrolmen Maddox and Willingham early Friday morning prevented the robbery of the Standard Oil company's gasoline filling station at Marjatta street and Howell Mill road.

The place was examined by the officers at 2:10 o'clock Friday morning and found intact. Crossing suddenly from another section of their beat, their examination disclosed that a window pane had been smashed, although nothing seemed to have been disturbed, except 50 pennies.

Looks on both doors of the store of Thomas Sherwood, 344 North Butler street, were twisted off by burglars some time before daybreak Friday night. It had not been determined late Friday night just what had been taken.

Early Rome had no fire insurance agencies, but the sufferers were recompensed by generous citizens.

Hearings Postponed Until After Kiwanis Clubs and Meetings

On account of the lack of hotel accommodations during the week of May 28, which is the week when the national Kiwanis convention will be here, a number of hearings scheduled by the public service commission during that week have been postponed.

Hearing of the Central of Georgia Power company petition for permission to raise its power rates has been postponed from May 29 to June 7.

Petition of the Lanier County Power company to issue $300,000 of capital stock will be heard June 8 instead of May 29. The plea to be allowed to discontinue its agency station at Aberdeen, Ga., of the A. B. & A. railroad, will also be heard June 8 instead of May 29.

Hearings which were originally set for May 30, but now postponed to June 8, include the petition of the Rome & Northern Railroad company to issue $10,000 of capital stock, the petition of the Wadley & Southern stockade authorities, Friday spent the day under a double set of locks in the police barracks.

Clay will be arraigned before the recorder under a charge of escaping, or "failing to abide the sentence of the court." He will then be carried to the stockade to finish an uncompleted term.

More than one-third of the American dollar is spent for food.

Noted Negro Preacher To Deliver Lecture Here on Tuesday

Rev. L. K. Williams, pastor of Olivet Baptist church, Chicago, one of the largest negro houses of worship in America, and president of the National Baptist convention, U. S. A., will deliver an address at Ebenezer Baptist church, in Atlanta, on next Tuesday night.

Rev. Williams will arrive from Washington, D. C., on his way to Tuskegee Institute, where he will deliver the commencement address on May 24. He enjoys a national reputation as a speaker.

"Buster" Clay Held
Behind Double Lock
After Three Escapes

J. M. ("Buster") Clay, of 15 Flat Shoals avenue, who made three sensational escapes from police and city stockade authorities, Friday spent the day under a double set of locks in the police barracks.

Clay will be arraigned before the recorder under a charge of escaping, or "failing to abide the sentence of the court." He will then be carried to the stockade to finish an uncompleted term.

Watkins to Succeed Judge E. J. Reagan, Says Capital Rumor

Reports that William H. Watkins, of Jackson, will be appointed by Governor-elect Clifford M. Walker, shortly after he is inaugurated, to the post of special counsel for the state public service commission, were unconfirmed Friday at the state capital. Neither at the office of the public service commission nor at the governor's office could the rumor be confirmed.

Judge E. J. Reagan, incumbent, was appointed by Governor Hardwick on December 29, 1922, following the resignation of Justice Hines. Judge Reagan's term expires on August 23, this year, the wording of the act changing the name of the commission from "railroad commission," to "public service commission," particularly specifying that the term and appointment of the special counsel shall be unchanged.

Basis for the report is probably to be found in the fact that Mr. Watkins, who is one of the best known lawyers in the state, was very active for the governor-elect during his campaign, speaking on behalf of Mr. Walker's candidacy in all parts of the state and also acting in an advisory capacity at the campaign headquarters. Mr. Watkins was the representative from Butts county in the last legislature. He has served as attorney for that county for many years, has been connected with some of the highest legal cases in the county and has a statewide reputation as an orator of note.

Madrid, in point of geographical elevation, is the highest city in Europe. Machines are now in use which make cigarettes at the rate of 50,000 an hour.

THE only way to keep cooking fat fresh as the day it was made, is in an airtight tin.

An old fashioned airtight tin not only kept out the air, but it tried to keep you out, too. You had to tackle it with a knife or can-opener. The difference between fresh Snowdrift and ordinary cooking fat was worth the trouble—and more—

But the new Snowdrift bucket gives you freshness without the bother. It's absolutely airtight, but it's the easiest thing to open you ever saw.

The final music memory contest of the city schools was held at the Baptist Tabernacle Thursday. Twenty musical selections were played from a list of 50, the children being required to give the name of the composition and the name and nationality of the composer.

Perfect scores in the contest were made by the Tenth Street school, represented by Mary Seymour Ward, Lona Merkle, Lulah Coddington, Peitchard Hudson and Randolph Cummins; Highland school by Jenny Lind Mather, Richard Clark, Arlene Freitag, Mary Frances Mather, Marian Miller and Joyce Club, and the Greenwood school by Winifred Ruth Hubbard.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET HOLDS LAST SESSION

Rome, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—The final session of the state Sunday school convention was held at Berry schools tonight, featured by addresses by Dr. Walter M. Howlett and Dr. E. B. Quick.

Today, the closing one of the session, was an unusually busy one for the more than 400 delegates in attendance. The day's program began at 6 o'clock this morning with an "early devotional service" and was concluded shortly after 10 o'clock tonight.

Officials of the association are enthusiastic over the work done here. The program, they assert, was one of the best in the history of the Georgia association.

WIFE OF ATLANTA BURGLAR FINED $5 BY RECORDER

Mrs. Mickey Hughes, of 140 West Peachtree street, wife of the man who is now serving a term for robbing the Causey and Gordon drug store at Doraville, was fined $5 and costs for disorderly conduct Friday afternoon by Recorder Johnson. Clyde Shaw, of 35 Washington, who was with her when she was arrested, was fined the same amount and L. E. Thompson, 18, of Decatur, another member of the party, forfeited a $15 bond for non-appearance.

The trio were arrested by Officer Schillings late Thursday night in front of a new school building being erected on Cooper street. Officer Schillings testified that they were all intoxicated and cursing loudly.

When this statement was made young Shaw leaped forward with clenched fists and it was only by the interference of Sergeant Dobbs that a lively combat with the officer was averted in court.

The Georgia railroad commission has been petitioned by the Georgia, Florida and Alabama Railway company for permission to increase its capital stock from $450,000 to $2,685,000, in order to absorb the bonded indebtedness which with interest amounts to $2,359,550.35.

Mrs. Cora Williams, president, has agreed to accept stock in the road to the amount due her. The company was originally incorporated September 13, 1895, with an authorized capital stock of $100,000 and has twice amended its charter to permit other issues of stock.

BROTHER-IN-LAW OF LOCAL WOMAN VICTIM OF FIRE

That her brother-in-law, J. E. Pierce, died in the fire that destroyed the Cleveland schoolhouse, near Camden, S. Cobb, editor of the Southern Ruralist, Friday. Few details were given Miss Simpson, but she immediately caught a train for Camden and reached there Friday night.

HABERSHAM COUNTY TO SHIP APPLES SOON

H. R. Staight, Large Demorest Grower, Fixes June 20 as Date.

Clarksville, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—The first shipment of early apples from Habersham county for eastern markets will probably be ready by June 20, it was announced Friday by H. R. Staight, proprietor of Shady View orchard, near Demorest.

For the last two weeks growers of apples in this section have been busily engaged in spraying the young fruit in order to protect it from insects. In a recent article concerning prospects of the apple crop for this year, carried in the news columns of The Constitution, it was erroneously stated that R. H. Black, prominent apple grower near Cornelia, was president of the Yonah Fruit company. Mr. Black is a member of the Consolidated Apple Growers' exchange with headquarters at Cornelia, and at one time was connected with the Yonah Fruit company, but severed his connection in 1917.

Officers of the Yonah Fruit company at George W. Miller, president; S. Fugazzi, vice president, and L. W. Palen, secretary and treasurer.

Home Economics Work at Fulton High on Exhibit

Exhibits of the work of the students in the home economics department of Fulton High school were declared by judges to be the best that have ever been presented, and that they reflected great credit upon the 90 students and Miss Leila Bunce, the instructor.

Among the best of the exhibits was a young woman's complete wardrobe, materials for which cost only $21.35, dishes of every kind prepared by the students, and various work done with needle and sewing machine. The young woman's outfit was made by Miss Mary Lou McElroy, one of the prize winners.

Other prize winners were Miss Louise Batistini and Miss Lillian Harper. Miss Blanche Byars also displayed a well made outfit, which cost only $30.50.

The food displays were well prepared along scientific lines. The food department maintains the cafeteria at the school, and has been very successful since its establishment seven years ago.

Farmer's Folks Told Case Was Hopeless

Couldn't Eat and Took to Bed, Declares Carter. Since Taking Tanlac, Again Weighs 175 Lbs. and Is Picture of Health.

Remarkable, indeed, is the statement made a few days ago by S. L. Carter, a well known farmer, living on R. F. D. No. 1, Sylvester, Ga. Mr. Carter declared that when he began taking Tanlac he was down in bed, as a result of nervous indigestion, and that his case had been pronounced hopeless. However, his declaration: "Tanlac has made a new man of me," is fully substantiated by his fine physique and robust appearance, for he now tips the scales at 175 pounds and is the picture of perfect health.

"Before taking Tanlac," said Mr. Carter, "I had suffered from indigestion and nervousness for two years. Always after eating, and I could eat but very little—I was bothered with gas on my stomach and had pains so sharp I could hardly stand them. I was also troubled with ton. He said the battery was transferred to the army of Virginia and wiped out at the battle of Chancellorsville. It was found that there was no such unit as the "twentieth Georgia artillery," by Miss Lillian Henderson, assistant superintendent of the commission, who can not be stumped by a little problem of this kind. She pulled down the roster of all officers in the callant gray armies and finally found that a Major Elijah Paxton had commanded the twentieth Virginia heavy artillery. She traced the records of this organization and, sure enough, the name of "Louis E. Stratton, private, Company D," was found among the rest.

The papers were sent to Joplin. The old soldier was transferred from the army house to the soldiers' home—transferred from a place where he felt himself to be a pitiful object of charity to a place where he feels he is an inmate of a home which stamps him with the highest honor that a grateful people can confer, that of having served his country in the great war between the states.

The home at Hazersville is among the best in the late Confederate states. It was bought and paid for by true southern people, strictly by subscription. In a letter from Mr. Friend, thanking the Georgia soldier roster commission for its splendid work in this case, he concludes by saying: "Allow me to again thank you and the state of Georgia. Georgia should be, and doubtless is, proud of your department and the splendid service you are rendering the soldiers of the late Confederate states. You are not alone serving the state of Georgia, but all the states."

"I say God bless you in this great work."

FARM SCHEDULES MAY BE REOPENED

manufacture without making an appeal to partisan political prejudices. But it so happens that the worked in a manner diametrically opposite to what was expected of it.

The flexible clause was accepted by the republicans in the question and was acquiesced in by the democrats because it was thought that through its instrumentality it would be possible to scientifically determine what articles should be included in articles that may be imported. Now comes the test.

Information Needed. To determine what could or should be a fair rate it is necessary to obtain all essential information. Having obtained the information, it is necessary to employ experts to dissect, analyze and classify it. To other experts are employed to determine whether the classification is correct and the information reliable.

This costs a lot of money and though the total investment in farm property in the United States exceeds the mammoth sum of $80,000,000,000, no farm organization seems to be able to raise a fund sufficient to pay for the collection and classification of information. Neither is it possible to find among the farmers the talent necessary to investigate a matter so intricate and, to the average mind, so bewildering.

On the other hand, the paint and varnish men, the soap men and others who are exposed to the vegetable oil tariff, are ready and willing to spend many thousands of dollars financing surveys of the situation. Nobody charges that any of the money is expended corruptly, because all who believe themselves aggrieved by the tariff have a right to approach the commission and present such evidence as they are able to gather.

What is known as a bureau of raw materials is the agency through which the opponents of the agricultural schedules operate. It is a wonderfully efficient body and has collected a tremendous amount of information giving alleged facts and figures which stagger the average mind. The best obtainable brains have been selected for this work and it is little wonder when the results of their labors are laid before the tariff commission that respect is paid to their demands.

No Counter Information.

The farmers have no counter information of any real and convincing value to offer. They are compelled to depend upon the fairness of the commission, but the commission in turn must rely upon the advice of the experts associated with it.

It is no reflection on the tariff commission to say that no member is equipped with that comprehensive and definite economic knowledge which would enable him to reach, without the advice of experts, a conclusion on any tariff schedule which may be in dispute.

Naturally, if the farmers are unable to give evidence of information, which to a reasonable man successfully combats the arguments and conclusions of the other side, they will be at a disadvantage before the tariff commission.

The southern delegation which called on the president were greatly encouraged by his evident friendliness toward the farmers, and especially by the opinion that they might safely rest their case with the chief executive.

Those who take that view, however, forget that friendly as he may be, and sympathetic as he is known to be, the chief executive could not without embarrassment to himself set aside the judgment of his own commission, especially if that judgment be unanimous. He would assume that a body who had patiently listened to both sides for a considerable period and had weighed the evidence for and against in a non-partisan way, taking the disinterested advice of government experts, had correctly diagnosed the case.

Indeed to take any other view would be to discredit the whole idea of flexibility in tariff making, an idea that was very dear to the heart of the administration.

Farmer Helpless Giant.

The truth is the farmer is a helpless giant in the presence of concentrated and mobilized special interests. He is appalled and intimidated by the expert, wholly unable to construct his case. He knows that he must have a tariff on vegetable oils, but he cannot give an effective and detailed answer to such questions as others who have gone carefully and deliberately into the vitals of the whole matter.

Recognizing the danger to the entire vegetable oil and fish oil industry of the United States, farm organizations all over the country are mobilizing their forces to resist any attempt to bring about a reduction in the rates. The Atlanta Cotton Oil company and the Southern Menhaden corporation, of St. Joseph, Fla., a fish oil concern, have united with others in the struggle against opening the vegetable oil schedules.

But they are not equipped with the technical information so sedulously collected by the opponents of these schedules. Consequently they go into the fight greatly handicapped. Unquestionably a strong effort will be made to repeal the flexible clause when congress meets together next December. Leaders of the republican party dread this probability because they fear that the entire tariff will suffer a severe mauling.

con, Bonnell was found on Clinton road, near that city, in an unconscious condition, his automobile having been wrecked. Dr. Frank Jones, of Macon, and a Dr. White, of Bradley, who found him, placed him in a passing automobile, directing that he be taken to the Macon hospital. Friday, however, it was found that the victim had been taken to any of the Macon hospitals.

Dr. Jones stated that when he arrived at the scene of the accident a man was attempting to remove Bonnell from the debris, and he assisted. Later an automobile came along, driven by a man who said that he knew the Atlanta, and that he would take him to the hospital. That is the last time he has heard of the Atlanta, said the doctor.

DEATH LOOMS OVER CAPTIVES IN CHINA

first few days of their detention, hoping in this way to calm the fears of their friends and relatives. These caused the public to think that our release was only a matter of course.

"This is a grave mistake. The bandits hold the upper hand. They are absolutely determined to force compliance with their demands for the withdrawal of the troops and reinstatement of themselves in the army and they are prepared to forfeit our lives and their own in the attempt."

"Unless the Pekin government is forced to realize this by the foreign powers we surely are doomed."

"I strongly urge our friends and the public to call mass meetings and do everything possible to impress on the foreign powers the desperate nature of our predicament."

Pleading for lives. "Consider us pleading for our lives."

"The Chinese officials at Pekin will not do anything unless forced by pressure from America and England to meet the bandits' terms."

"I recommend the sending of urgent cable to Washington and London backed up by the entire foreign community of China."

"This is not only my personal opinion; it is the unanimous belief and hope of all the captives."

Another letter from Rev. William Leffers, the aged German priest of Lincheng, was delivered to the Associated Press here today and describes his second trip into the stronghold of the Shantung bandits. For the second time within a few days he interviewed the bandit chieftain, but did not succeed in obtaining the liberation of any of the foreign captives.

Starting from Tsao-Chewang Tuesday, Father Leffers was accompanied by Dr. H. Martens and Father Buis, a Dutch missionary. They traveled 15 hours.

Encounter Japanese.

Father Leffers relates that en route they encountered a Japanese patrol and had to fight a short battle for the bandit headquarters.

"We forbade him to proceed," writes the priest, "because he would certainly have been killed, greatly increasing our danger. He refused; we threatened, and compelled him to turn back."

"We heard a signal shot at noon, and discerned bandits on the slopes of the mountains. We continued until we were halted at the outer camp of the outlaws. They were distant and suspicious, and told me they were being cheated and I was being deceived, because, they declared, they had been withdrawn from only one mountain, after I had promised that all would be withdrawn. They told me that new troops then were only a few miles away."

"They refused to permit me to proceed and see Chevalier Musso, who is sick, offering the Catholic mission's guarantee. I begged for permission to take Musso out. Refusing, they said, Musso was ten miles away."

Bandits Give Message.

"The bandits gave me a letter on dirty paper purporting to account for our movements. Then they offered us a 16-year-old Chinese girl captive from Shanghai. We decided to refuse, still asking for Musso. The girl was taken away and we were warned to leave by 3 o'clock."

"The leader accompanied us for a short distance, charging bad faith in our movements."

DANGER SIGNALS OF INDIGESTION

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning.

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system "lets down" in tone and vigor with the first approach of warm weather.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical books tell us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull, lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes, pain and fluttering around the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion—you are too apt to lose. If you have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Dan-Nax, the greatest prescription that was ever written for a digestive tonic. Dan-Nax immediately aids and assists every one of your digestive organs, including the stomach, liver and bowels. Dan-Nax makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Dan-Nax today at any drug store. Dan-Nax is much superior to any other remedy for indigestion that the manufacturers have instructed every druggist to refund the price if you do not get relief, so that you lose nothing, if you are not delighted with results. Delay might be dangerous, get Dan-Nax today. (adv.)

regard to the troops, but he shook hands with me as he left.

"The chief told me he would release only a few captives when the first conditions were fulfilled, a few more when the second conditions were carried out and all of them when the bandits were safeguarded."

"I advise you to print in large letters that there's no hope of the prisoners being released in a short time. Who thinks otherwise is ignorant of the ways of mountain outlaws."

"We returned to Tsao Chwang at 8 o'clock the same night."

Pekin, May 18.—Marcel Berube, of Shanghai, was unconditionally released today by the Suchow bandits, according to advices received here.

Marcel O. Berube, the first foreign captive taken in the raid on the Shanghai-Pekin express May 6 to be freed by the brigands, arrived at Lincheng yesterday. At the same time it was stated he was free only on a brief parole and had been sent out with the bandits' ultimatum that if the Chinese troops besieging the bandits were not withdrawn by next Tuesday, all the American and British hostages would be summarily shot.

Schurman Reports.

Washington, May 18.—Minister Schurman reported to the state department today that negotiations for release of the foreigners by Chinese bandits appeared to be in progress between the bandit leaders and representatives of the Chinese government at Lincheng, and that the prisoners might be released within two or three days.

Some difficulties had arisen among the bandit leaders, the message said, the older men among them apparently being desirous of delaying an agreement and of exacting larger concessions for the release of the prisoners.

The American minister said that if this condition and rivalry among the Chinese governmental representatives themselves continued, it might be sometime before the prisoners were set free.

Mr. Schurman's message was regarded hopefully at the state department, as indicating that actual negotiations between the Chinese government and the bandit leaders were in progress. No official information has come through tending to confirm reports that new threats had been made by the bandit leaders to execute the prisoners within a specific time unless the full terms were accepted.

The view taken in Washington is that there is not much danger to the prisoners while there is any prospect that substantial ransoms or other concessions can be obtained for their release and as long as the Chinese troops are not employed against the bandits.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS NAME DAY OF PRAYER

To Pray for Divine Guidance in Carrying out Plans.

Kansas City, May 18.—The Southern Baptist convention, in session here, today set apart Friday, June 1, or a day as near that as possible, as a day of prayer for divine guidance in the carrying out of their plans.

At the close of the morning session the convention passed a resolution of non-concurrence with a resolution offered yesterday opposing the teaching of evolution in schools. The resolution today declared that it did not dissent "because of the principles involved," but "on the ground of interference beyond the province of the convention."

The Rev. J. P. Jenkins, of Louisville, Ky., read a report of the committee of Baptist city councils. It recommended that the home board make a survey of the situation confronting the home missionary society in the cities and report to the convention next year on some definite policy. This report was adopted.

Reads Committee Report.
The committee that was to examine the work of the foreign mission board was read by Dr. J. B. Wetherspoon, of Louisville, Ky. It said that there is a debt of $403,807.24, plus a large interest account. This, added to the amount now due to the two seminaries and the Bible institute, the report declares, brings the indebtedness to $678,243.88.

The report said that 75 young people had already sent in applications for appointments this summer. "And the board will have to pay as interest this year an amount that would send out fifty of these and pay their salaries for a year," Mr. Wetherspoon said. He urged a stewardship campaign and the adoption of a budget plan in churches. The report was adopted.

Foreign Mission Work.
Larger advances were made in the foreign mission work of the Southern Baptists during the year than in any other of the 78 years the organization has been doing missionary work, the annual report of the foreign mission board, as presented to the convention by Dr. J. F. Love, of Richmond, Va., said.

Included in the gains for the twelve months' period were the organization of 12,611 baptisms, 39,077 new members added to the churches, the erection of 67 new houses of worship, organization of 476 new Sunday schools, a gain of 13,716 in Sunday school pupils, an increase of 6,282 in the number of pupils enrolled in mission schools and colleges, the sending out of 47 new foreign missionaries and the addition of 1,647 missionaries to the staff of workers in the foreign fields.

"STUNTS" ENLIVEN ENDEAVOR SOCIAL FRIDAY NIGHT

A program of stunts in charge of Miss Katherine Hunter Friday night enlivened the spring social of the West End Presbyterian Christian Endeavor society.

Among the participants in a series of mystifying stunts were Edgar White, Herward Becknell, Newman Schartle and Roger Rusk.

The event was held at the manse, 140 Gordon street. C. H. Orrison, vice president, presided over a brief business session.

ATLANTA FIRM SUE ON SUGAR CONTRACT

A suit for judgment was filed by attorneys for the American Sugar Refining company in the United States district court Friday against George Moore company.

The petition states that the local company refused to pay for sugar shipment and refused five others. This necessitated their being held for some time only to be sold at salvage prices. The difference between the original market selling price and the salvage price is being sought by the plaintiff.

Eastern Prelate Urges Adoption Of Modern Attire

Melittos IV., May Do Away
With Age-Long Beard
Custom.

Modern twentieth century western civilization has penetrated into the heart of the Eastern Orthodox church, with the result that the picturesque long beards of the orthodox prelates will, it is believed, shortly be replaced by a much shorter variety, with the possibility of the adoption of a smooth face as the ecclesiastical custom.

The Rev. Cyril E. Benig, executive secretary of the diocese of Atlanta, has received word from Episcopalian churchmen engaged in arranging the world conference on faith and order, which will be held in 1925, that Melittos IV., recently enthroned at Constantinople as Ecumenical patriarch of the Eastern Orthodox church, is advocating religious reforms. The prelate recently visited America and to this is attributed the request for adoption of more modern dress for churchmen. Another reason for the prelate is the adoption of the Gregorian or Western calendar, for all civil purposes, which has been recently adopted by the Greek government at Athens, in place of the older Julian calendar.

WOMAN AND CHILD NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH IN CRASH

Mrs. W. R. Lynch and her ten-year-old daughter, Evelyn, of 176 Peachtree circle, narrowly escaped death when a large automobile in which they were riding, driven by their chauffeur, George Moore, crashed into a building.

The crash occurred at 5:30 p.m. on Friday, May 18, when the automobile, driven by Mr. Moore, crashed into the building at the corner of Peachtree and Eleventh streets.

Mr. Lynch and his daughter received slight bruises and cuts about the body, while Mrs. Lynch and R. D. Adams, who were in his car, were uninjured. The negro was not hurt.

Officers J. E. McDaniel and J. M. Austin investigated the accident. At the request of Mrs. Lynch and Adams no cases were made.

Fireman Is Fined; Figured in 2 Auto Accidents Thursday

H. S. Cochran, of 828 Spring street, member of the Atlanta fire department, who figured in two automobile accidents Thursday, one of which caused slight injury to himself, was fined $25 and costs Friday afternoon by Recorder Johnson, for drunkenness.

The first accident, in which the child was injured, occurred near the child's home, W. O. "Bill" Wallace, another member of the department, was with Cochran at the time. The second took place a few minutes later when his automobile collided with a truck at Peachtree and Eleventh streets.

Cochran pleaded guilty to being intoxicated, but denied the reckless driving charge. Witnesses introduced bore out his statement.

SAUNDERS' PLANS FOR SALE HALTED

but I still am fighting," Saunders said in making this announcement. "I have asked the pool to give me until July 1. I have agreed that if I do not pay off every cent I owe out of town pool interests by that time, I will step out and sign the business over to them. They have given me no answer on my proposal for an extension of time. I do not know what they are going to do."

Mr. Saunders said 91,000 shares of Piggly Wiggly stock, valued roughly at $400,000, held as collateral, were transferred to the ownership of the "pool" three days before representatives of its membership came to Memphis several days ago for a conference.

This action, he said, was taken without notice. Saunders, charging his predicament to "out-of-town" interests, declared Memphis pool members were co-operating with him. He declared the intention was to remove him from the business "and turn Piggly Wiggly over to the banks."

"But if they get me out, they will have to shoot me out," he declared to newspapermen who questioned him on the latest turn in Piggly Wiggly's affairs which have run the gamut of a series of hectic developments since it came into prominence with its sensational day in Wall street last month, which ended with the ruling of the stock off the New York stock exchange, and an announcement by Saunders, that thereafter, he would look to the "public" as a market for his stock.

Plan to Sell Stores.
Saunders plans to sell enough of the Piggly Wiggly stores to clear bank loans and pool obligations was announced shortly after a campaign to dispose of 50,000 shares of the stock

FANATIC ATTEMPTS TO WRECK CONSULATE

The department was still awaiting late today a report as to the bombing of the Mexico City consulate.

No arrests have been reported. The missile was hurled into the embassy garden at the time of radical demonstrations in the streets of the city, in the course of which the demonstrators protested against the recog-ization conferences between the Mexican and American governments. It is assumed here that the outrage was the act of some radical fanatic.

In Attorney's Office.

Laredo, Texas, May 18.—The bomb explosion in Mexico City early today occurred in the office of Licio Castillo (attorney) Castillo in the same building in which is housed the American consulate, according to a telegram here from the Mexican foreign relations department to Consul Vasquez. Little damage was done.

The telegram as given out by the consul, reads:
"Bomb exploded 2 o'clock this morning in office of Licio Castillo, situated in same building as American consulate, but facing on different street. Consulate faces Avenida Juarez; lawyer's office on Calle Rosales. Damage caused by bomb insignificant. No one injured. Believed authors to be discovered soon."

Mr. J. M. Mar, Los Angeles, Calif., writes: "Overwork occasioned a complaint which consisted of a tired feeling and pain in the back, that finally became all my strength. A friend advised me to take S.S.S. and after taking only several bottles I was entirely relieved."

Try it yourself. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical. Get a bottle today!

Liquor Alleged to Have Been

Street Home.

Six months on the chaingang and $750 fine was the penalty imposed Friday by Judge E. D. Thomas on Fred Bush, 52 West Fifth street, for his alleged activity in "making a little whisky for his own use" with three small moonshine stills.

The prison term and fine were fixed Friday morning after Bush had pleaded guilty Thursday afternoon, through his attorney, Hooper Alexander, and had asked the mercy of the court on grounds that he had six children to support and did not know that he was violating the law in making whisky. He is said to have had 20 gallons of corn liquor and 80 gallons of beer when his home was raided last month by a force of city and county officers led by Solicitor General John A. Boykin, Chief of Police James L. Beavers and Captain T. O. Sturdivant, head of the city plainclothes department.

NEWMAN LASER HEADS PYTHIAN ORGANIZATION

Newman Laser was unanimously elected first president of the Institution of State Associations, composed of the five Khorassan temples in Georgia of the Pythian order, at an organization meeting in Macon Thursday. The institution was formed for the purpose of promoting the welfare and fellowship of Knights of Pythias.

Temples in Atlanta, Macon, Savannah, Augusta and Columbus, with a membership of more than 5,000, were represented at the meeting.

Mr. Laser is now serving his second term as royal viceroy of the Kible Lodge No. 103, Knights of Pythias.

CITY HAS RIGHT TO TRY EMPLOYEES RULES HIGH COURT

The court erred in not sustaining the demurrer to the petition of the plaintiff and in granting the writ of prohibition restraining the city council of Macon from trying J. L. Anderson on the charges recently preferred against him, according to a decision handed down Friday by the supreme court.

Anderson, a member of the Macon city council, was charged with embezzling $2,230.00 from the funds of the Central City Lodge, No. 8, of the International Association of Machinists while he was financial treasurer of that lodge. He was alleged to have committed the offense while a member of the water commission and of the Bacon field park commission of Macon and the case is now pending in the Bibb county courts.

Anderson contended that he can only be removed from the offices he holds for unbecoming conduct in the discharge of his duties.

The supreme court holds that members of any board of the city of Macon can be removed on conviction after a public trial by the city council for larceny after trust or embezzlement, although such offense has no immediate connection with the duties of his office, "the same making him infamous and unfit to execute or discharge public functions."

TWO YOUTHS BEGIN 18 MONTHS' TERMS

Mason Owens and Albriston Edwards, two Stewart county youths recently returned from Oklahoma to face charges of having robbed the postoffice at Benfro, Ga., Friday began sentences of 18 months each in the federal prison.

Owens and Edwards pleaded guilty to the theft charge before Judge Samuel H. Sibley. Charles Burch, who was also arrested with Owens and Edwards in Oklahoma for alleged implication in the burglary, refused to plead guilty and demanded a trial. He was placed in Fulton tower in default of $2,000 bond pending trial.

apolis about eight years ago. While dneral services were held last Saturday.

PARENTS UNINTERESTED IN SCHOOLS ASSAILED

Adams Makes Statement Following Hearing of Attack on Teachers.

A ringing denunciation of fathers who never visit their schools or make any constructive effort to improve school conditions, was voiced by Sam Adams, member of the county board of education from the Collins district, at the conclusion of an investigation
Friday afternoon into complaints filed against Mr. and Mrs. J. W.
Rogers, teachers at the R. J. Guinn county school on Roswell road. The complaints were taken under advisement for future disposition of lack of interest on the part of fathers and children of the school testified in favor of retaining the Rogers as teachers and an equal number in favor of dismissing them. The complaint in a petition submitted to the board by eleven patrons made no criticism either of the character or ability of the teachers but expressed simply a desire for a change. The Rogers have been teaching at the Guinn school for seven years. The officers of the association all appealed in behalf of their retention as teachers next year.

Mr. Adams' denunciation of lack of interest on the part of fathers came at the conclusion of testimony of a number of men who had stated that they had never visited the school.
"The condition of indifference is worse than all the vice and iniquity of the great cities in its effect on the children who must bear the community's burdens in the future," Mr.
Adams declared. "It is a shame and a disgrace on our people that some fathers have so little interest in their children that they do not know and do not seem to care where or how they are taught."

"It isn't enough for them to pay taxes to hire teachers and build schools, they ought to take a personal part in seeing how the money is spent."

The board member asserted a belief that every father and mother should belong to an organization of parents and school patrons, to cooperate with teachers and with boards of education to see that the best results are obtained in training their children.

The New World Begun

"millions now living will never die."

—Judge Rutherford.

Life, perfect, limitless;
with a regenerated race;
on a restored earth; with a corrected climate and life-perpetuating food; under a Government which will satisfy the righteous desires of every living creature.

And it's here, at the door. The portals of the new age are swinging open and many will enter and never die.

The old order is passing away, the new order is here. Christ Jesus is taking unto Himself His great power and beginning His reign. The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand.

You can by no means afford to let business or pleasure or any person deprive you of the solace and benefits enjoyed by those who have investigated this timely and heart-cheering message. The sole object of this lecture is to bring to the people a knowledge of the dispensational truth now due to be understood.

You are cordially invited to hear Prof. Louis F. Hilde-

Building (take elevator to 9th floor), 8:00 P. M., Sunday, May 20th.

Judge Rutherford's book, "Millions Now Living Will

It's Really a Matter of Every Individual's Personal Interest

"THE FACT IS fundamental that adequate and dependable and stabilized transportation is the most efficient agency in promoting the growth and development of the City... It (the Power Company's constructive plan for solving Atlanta's present and future transportation problem) is a matter of a community's material welfare, which resolves itself into a matter of each individual's personal interest."

—The Atlanta Constitution.

THE CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM referred to in The Constitution's editorial is the plan, filed with the City Clerk for presentation to the Mayor and Council next Monday, which the Georgia Railway & Power Company offers to the City and the Public in the hope of remedying conditions which are making it increasingly more difficult to furnish transportation service to meet the future growth and needs of the community.

The Company believes the plan will benefit the Public generally by making it possible for the Company to prepare to furnish better, safer, quicker and more extensive transportation service in the future.

The petition has been filed in the earnest hope and belief that the program will meet with the approval of the City authorities, and that the City and Public may be willing to cooperate in putting it into effect.

Everyone agrees with the editorial quoted above, that "adequate and dependable and stabilized transportation is the most efficient agency in promoting the growth and development of the city."

Adequate and dependable transportation are as important an adjunct to the development of a City as real estate and people themselves. Whenever a City's transportation problem is solved, watch the City grow. Picture how necessary the assurance of the right sort of transportation is to the future as well as the present. The business and pleasure, the material welfare and the intangible sense of security that comes from freedom from worry, depend, among other things, on adequate transportation facilities.

This Company's plan for solving the present and future transportation problem of Atlanta has been submitted for Official and Public approval. The program can be carried out only with the sincere cooperation of the City, the Company and the Public.

We believe that the City Officials, with the encouragement and approval of the Public generally, are going to cooperate with the Company in efforts to solve Atlanta's transportation problem now and in the interest of the people of Atlanta.

gram will be glad to send you one.

ENCHANTMENT FAVORABLE TO KENTUCKY DERBY TODAY

Twenty-Four Thoroughbreds Listed to Start in Event; Record Attendance Certain Chittagong Given Rail in Assignment of Post Positions and Enchantment Gets Center; In Memoriam Outside.

Louisville, Ky., May 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Twenty-four thoroughbreds, the cream of three-year-olds in the racing world, are expected to start in the forty-ninth renewal of the Kentucky derby here tomorrow. The prize, approximately $50,000, is the richest in international turfdom and outranks the English derby which carried a value of $45,000.

Indications point to a record-breaking crowd approaching 75,000, which is more than the capacity of the huge grandstands and the space between them and the rail.

In the assignment of post positions Chittagong was given the rail. Enchantment in the center and In Memoriam on the outside.

Following are the post positions, probable jockeys and owners:

1. Chittagong, J. Hupel, jockey; J. Hertz, owner.
2. The Clown, H. Lunsford, jockey; Audley Farm, owner.
3. (C) Cherry Pie, L. Perman, jockey; Greentree Stable, owner.
4. Prince K. W. Kelso, jockey; Marshall Brothers, owner.
5. Virgil, B. Marinelli, jockey; W. J. Salmon, owner.
6. (A) Better Luck, A. Johnson, jockey; B. Black, owner.
7. Bright Tomorrow, L. Lyke, jockey; E. R. Bradley, owner.
8. Nassau, M. Garner, jockey; F. Johnson, owner.
9. Everhart, J. P. Looney, owner.
10. (A) Aspiration, B. Kennedy, jockey; B. Black, owner.
11. Zev, E. Sande, jockey; Rancho Stable, owner.
12. (C) Enchantment, L. McAtee, jockey; T. Miller, owner.
13. Wida, A. Yerrall, jockey; F. Weiland, owner.
14. Praxus, J. Owens, jockey; T. Whitner, owner.
15. Calcutta, A. Yerrall, jockey; C. R. Allen, owner.
16. (C) Chickadee, Greentree Stable, owner.
17. (B) Golden Rule, C. Lang, jockey; J. S. Cadden, owner.
18. General Thacker, C. Robinson, jockey; Nevada Farm Stable, owner.
19. Anna M. Humphrey, M. Garner, jockey; J. S. Cadden, owner.
20. (C) Rialto, F. Castelli, jockey; Greentree Stable, owner.
21. (C) Pickster, J. Corcoran, jockey; Greentree Stable, owner.
22. (B) Maringale, C. Kummer, jockey; J. S. Cadden, owner.
23. Bo McMillin, D. Connolly, jockey; T. J. Pendergast, owner.
24. In Memoriam, J. D. Mooney, jockey; Carl Weidman, owner.

(A)—Benjamin Black, owner.

(B)—J. S. Cadden, owner.

(C)—Greentree Stable and H. P. Whitner, owner.

Jockey Garner tentatively is given the mount on both Nassau and Anna M. Humphrey. If the track proves heavy, it was explained, Nassau will not start.

The race is at a mile and a quarter for three-year-olds and carries $50,000 in added money besides a gold plate valued at $5,000. If all twenty-four horses start, which now seems unlikely, the gross value to the winner will be $55,165 and the plate. The owner of the second horse will receive $5,000, the third $3,000 and the fourth $1,000.

The field is the largest in recent years. It includes such horses as Enchantment, the favorite, which is coupled in the letting with Cherry Pie, Chickadee, Rialto and Pickster, the Harry Payne Whitney entry; Bo McMillin, which has a heavy following; Virgil, winner of the Freehoves; General Thacker, In Memoriam and Chittagong, each not considered. Each horse will carry 126 pounds.

Meanwhile a battery of machines, the largest in the history of the classic, had been prepared to handle a record business for parimutuel betters. The usual staff of operators and calculators had been supplemented by a corps of especially schooled assistants who were ready to take their places at machines where as high as $50 and as little as $2 may be wagered. Indications were that the expected record-breaking crowd would contribute the largest combined wager of any previous Derby day, which at its peak was $1,000,000.

BOBBY HUGHES TO MEET C. WILSON

Savannah, Ga., May 18.—Bobby Hughes, of Louisiana, has accepted, it is today finally announced, the terms for a 12-round bout here with Claude Wilson, of Birmingham, who on a recent date knocked out Tim Callahan, a local contender for the lightweight southern championship, the fight to be staged at the municipal auditorium on May 24, with some interesting curtain raisers for the preliminary warmup of the crowd. The fight will be under the auspices of the American Legion which is endeavoring to enroll 1,000 new members by June 1.

One of Muriel's greatest paintings, "The Assumption," is hidden away in Guadalajara, Mexico. It is valued at more than $400,000 and is held by the church of that city. It is still in the city, but has been hidden since the revolution.

Bluebirds Honored.

The members of the University school baseball team, recently crowned champions of the City Prep League, will be given a dinner tonight at 7:30 o'clock by Captain Johnny Peel at his home on East Fourth street. Captain Peel is a member of the Atlanta fire department, and has a son playing third base for the Bluebirds. He has been an ardent supporter of the university team during the past year.

American Golf Invaders Trailing British Stars

HAGEN WINS GOLF BATTLE

BY WALTER HAGEN.

British Open Champion and Correspondent of The Constitution and of the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Leeds, May 18.—(Special.)—The luck of the draw in the Yorkshire Evening News tournament brought me face to face today with Gene Sarazen.

I got away with Gene by a margin of 3 and 1. Our battle was a close one from the time we left the first tee. Gene won the second hole with three but I got the seventh. We were all square at the ninth. It was a nip and tuck affair and both of us were determined to win, it possible.

We were both playing well and our cards figured 34 each for the first half. Gene is a hard little golfer to beat. He was driving well again and I had to play carefully to hold him in check. A large crowd followed us around and seemed to be more interested in seeing our match than that of the other semi-final. At the tenth hole I hit the best drive that I've made since coming over to England. Some one in the gallery told me it was at least 300 yards from the tee. Gene took a five at the twelfth by a poor approach, but I immediately lost the next hole by failing to sink my putt. Gene had a three here.

I got the sixteenth away from him with a three and followed it up with a birdie two at the seventeenth. My tee shot landed only a foot from the cup. This settled the match. I will play against H. O. Jolly, of Fox Grove in the 36-hole final tomorrow. I do not know much about his game. George Duncan was also out of the contest today. George has been playing the golf that I know he is capable of. I had a hard match this morning. Arthur Havers, who is rated as one of England's best, carried me to the nineteenth green before I was able to defeat him. He is a very long driver and showed it repeatedly today in his tee shots.

While I was defeating Havers, Sarazen had a comparatively easy match with James Ockenden whom he beat by 5 and 3. My score against Gene was 37.

"Bluebirds" Honored.

L. S. U. Leaders in Trials At S. I. C. Track Carnival

Georgia Tech Star Shows Way to Other Athletes in Throwing Javelin; Tigers Favored.

Montgomery, Ala., May 18.—Sixteen southern colleges will caper in earnest tomorrow in Cranton bowl in an effort to win honors in the first annual southern intercollegiate track and field meet.

Louisiana State university and Mississippi A. & M. college are displayed prominently in the trials today, sportswriters agree tomorrow a battle between the two for first honors tomorrow, although Georgia Tech's golden tornado still finds its following among track fans attending the events.

A crowd of some of the 1,500 persons saw the trials today and went away satisfied that tomorrow will bring forth some of the best track and field play that the south has ever seen in its short span of the sport.

Louisiana's Bayou boys apparently are the favorite here with the Aggies of Mississippi A. & M., second choice according to the rounds of applause that greeted the men in the trial events.

While no southern college was broken today, Whelchel, of Georgia Tech, threw the javelin a distance of 187 feet and 7 inches which is short of the southern record by approximately six feet.

George Duncan, of the 16 entries, is conceding victory to anyone else, and Vanderbilt, Virginia Polytechnic institute, Clemson, North Carolina, Georgia Tech and Tennessee are general favorites to emerge victorious.

Louisiana led in the trials today by winning the first place in the 120 high hurdles, a second in the shot put and a first in the 440-yard dash.

Plans for Finals.

Elaborate arrangements for the first day of the meet have been arranged with a monster parade through the principal streets preceding the opening of the finals. The parade, including civic and fraternal bodies, will be headed by the athletes, followed by the bands and the crowd, being more than 200 with the line of march ending at Cranton bowl, where the first event will be called at 1:30 o'clock. Judge J. J. Mayfield, substituting for Governor Blease, will be given a dinner tonight at 7:30 o'clock by Captain Johnny Peel at his home on East Fourth street. Captain Peel is a member of the Atlanta fire department, and has a son playing third base for the Bluebirds. He has been an ardent supporter of the university team during the past year.

CRACKERS' RALLY IN SIXTH INNING FALLS SHORT

Benny Karr Unable to Hold Sluggers of Jim Hamilton's Clan; Final Score Is 5 to 3

Vols Display Brilliant Brand of Fielding and Whack Out Karr's Offerings to All Parts of the Lot.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

The Crackers rallied, as is their custom, Friday in the third game of this series with the visiting Nashville Vols, but this time the rally was too steep for the boys to pull and the Vols took the victory, 5-3, the same margin created by the Crackers in snatching the laurels the day before.

While Miller's employees failed to recover all the ground lost through the ineffective hurling of Benny Karr, they were not charged with not securing old Jimmy Hamilton half to death as he crunched over on the Vol bench, ready for the worst to show up at any time. Jimmy has had two many games as good as won this season to slip away to the enemy to relish tight situations in the closing innings.

But as quick as Jimmy is under such circumstances he was not quick enough to keep the Crackers from drawing within one run of the fourth. After three Atlanta runners had crossed the final station, Hamilton rushed Bowman, a gigantic right-hander, to the mound and the Crackers were never in the struggle after that.

In that bloody sixth the Vols seemed doomed to trail in a game they deserved to win if a team ever did. They had displayed marvelous fielding ability behind young Davis. They had rapped safe hits to all corners of the lot and not all were of the one-base variety. They had outplayed the home boys in every department of the game.

But Davis entered this session in a shaky frame of mind. He must have recalled that only the day before the enemy had started an attack in the sixth after being made to look foolish in the previous innings. Anyway he sent over a slow one to Guyon, who promptly sent it to center for a single. Glenn Killinger walked, which didn't help Mr. Davis' frayed nerves, but when "Haley" Herman struck out, Davis should have collected himself.

He didn't, however, and put the Crackers back into the ball game by passing Elton Langford. When he passed out transportation for the third time—Moore being the grateful recipient on this occasion—Guyon crossed with the Crackers' first run. The ball was sent out at the juncture. Haley let the next pitch get by, but Killinger was off to a slow start and was caught at the plate, Langford and Moore advancing. Both scored a moment later when Ring singled to center. Miller went out to Cuyler and the Crackers' best attack of the afternoon was brought to a close. The Vols put men on the paths in each of the first three innings, but it was not until the fourth that they scored, two tallies coming in. Cuyler started with a single and went to third on Haley's single to left. On LeBourveau's long sacrifice fly to center Cuyler scored and Haley reached second. Bernsen doubled to center, scoring Haley. Perritt was in the infield and Ring pulled down Michaelis' fly.

In the fifth the Vols continued the attack, getting two more. Davis singled to center, but was forced at second by Murray. Richbourg singled to center and Murray scored. Ring's return to the infield sent the ball into the Nashville dug-out, Richbourg stopping at second. Cuyler singled to center, scoring Richbourg, but the former was caught at second trying to stretch his hit. Haley's triple to left center finished Karr in the seventh. Best going in. Best hit his second two-bagger of the day and Haley came in with the Vols' last tally.

Make Many Pretty Plays. Beautiful fielding marked the contest. Guyon was robbed of a two-base hit in the third when Murray leaped high into the air to spear his liner. In the previous inning LeBourveau raced to the left field foul line to draw in Johnny King's smash to that garden. The consistent fielding of "Kiki" Cuyler in center was another of the features for the Vols, this former Sully league star being responsible for seven putouts and not all were easy chances. He impresses this correspondent with being just about the finest centerfielder that has worked at Ponce de Leon, if we are to except our own Mr. Michael Burke, who has no superiors in that sector.

The work of Glenn Killinger at third and Eddie Moore at short was the Crackers' best contribution to the features. Glenn handled six chances in perfect style, one of his pickups cheating Michael Burke. Moore committed highway robbery on LeBourveau in the second. Johnny Ring chimed in with a nice catch in the sixth, when he vent away back to get LeBourveau's fly.

Georgia Outfit Defeats Mercer in Hard Battle

Six Runs Behind at One Stage of Game, Mercer Knots Count But Loses Out 7 to 6.

Macon, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—Inconsistent baseball by Mercer here this afternoon enabled the Bulldogs of the University of Georgia to win the game, 7 to 6, and even the series with the local team. The odd game of the series will be played here tomorrow afternoon, and should Mercer win, the mythical championship of the south will become a pie with a number of fingers in it for Georgia Tech.

Vanderbilt, Auburn and Georgia will all hold complicated claims, while Mercer will not feel bashful about speaking a word for her own position. The game was designated as "The Stone Day" and the brilliant "little hurler" who has borne the burdens of Mercer baseball teams for four years will be honored by the citizens of Macon. Stone will be pitching his last game of collegiate baseball, and will be facing Mercer's greatest rival in the deciding game of the series, and one of the most important conflicts of the entire season.

Approximately 300 fans in Macon have donated to buy a suitable gift for Stone, and a handsome gold watch has been selected. The watch will be inscribed with the initials of Stone's full name, William Arthur Stone, and a suitable inscription will be engraved inside.

Lige Maynard, who pitched Mercer to an S. I. A. A. championship and an unquestioned championship of the state in 1904, will present the watch to Stone. Maynard received a similar gift sixteen years ago. Off to Poor Start.

Mercer got off to a poor start behind Hammack today, and his unredemptive gave Georgia a five-run lead. Ryals relieved him at the beginning of the third, and pitched in fine form for the rest of the game. Powers, of Georgia, hit a home run in the second inning, and after this in the same frame, two men scored when sheppard muffed a long fly in rightfield.

Mercer was absolutely at Sale's mercy for six innings, except for one threat in the fifth, when the locals filled the bags with two out, but Smith was out on called strikes. The game was as close as strange. Sale fanned Ryals, Ellison and Wilkes in quick order in the sixth, and the spirits of the fans were low. Then, facing a six-run lead, Mercer came alive, and the game was a clean and ringing hit, embracing a double and a triple, six earned runs were batted over the plate.

Georgia eased a run over the plate in the eighth to win the game. Middlebrooks singled, and was sacrificed to second. Sale popped to Wilkes, but Clarke rolled one down to Ellison. Morgan ran to the back, and this time, Clarke was called safe on a close decision. Middlebrooks saw Morgan out of position, and came tearing in home, and Smith was forced to hold the ball and wait for the score.

Smith opened the ninth with a double, and took third on an out, but Ellison fanned, and with two strikes on Wilkes, the first baseman came alive, and the game was a clean and ringing hit, embracing a double and a triple, six earned runs were batted over the plate.

Many of Atlanta's Best Amateurs Swing in Action

More Than Forty Games Scheduled for Different Sandlot Diamonds Over the City This Afternoon.

This afternoon Atlanta's amateur baseball public will have a second chance of seeing its favorite team in action, for there will be something like 30 or 35 games played before nightfall, barring rain or other providential hindrances.

The games will be played at various times, beginning as early as 1:30 o'clock on some of the sand lots and others starting as late as 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The schedules of six organized leagues appear below and there are several leagues that have not as yet been organized but are playing regularly every Saturday afternoon. The Sunday school leagues will also play this afternoon.

Probably the best game for the afternoon from a comparison of scores already made will be the Commodore Fed-Weir Electric game inside the Federal prison walls. That game will start promptly at 2 o'clock in order to be finished before 4 o'clock to comply with the prison rules on athletics. The public will not have an opportunity of witnessing the game but later on in the season the Fed team will play the Western Electric nine on an outside diamond.

Have Good Teams.
Both the Feds and the Electrics are good teams and last Sunday afternoon the Electrics were defeated by a small score at Fort McPherson by the strong World's Fair nine.

The suburban league will see some fast amateur baseball this afternoon for the teams listed in the suburban league will have the strongest combination in the city and suburbs.

The city league is another that will have keen competition, for the teams are more evenly matched than any of the others. The Agogas vs. Georgia West Point railroad game will probably be the best on the city league schedule. The Agoga team has many of its former members playing and each year the Agoga nine stands out as one of Atlanta's best amateur nines. The railroad team is also weak and one of the best players that ever performed in prep circles are playing for the railroaders.

The schedules for this afternoon:

Spalding League.
Knights of Columbus vs. Proctor & Gamble, at steel plant, 3 o'clock; Railway Mail Service vs. Gordon Street Barons, at Exposition Mills; Exposition Cotton Mills vs. Trinity, at Inman Yards.

City League.
Agogas vs. Georgia West Point, at S. W. Piedmont, 3 o'clock; Umpire, Kodner; Georgia Railway and Power company vs. Southern Bell, at N. W. Piedmont, 3 o'clock; Umpire, Park; Commodore Feds vs. Western Electric at Federal prison, 2 o'clock; Umpire, West.

Perrin League.

HARDING REFUSES TO GIVE BATTLE

Mr. Harding's party is that he should have brought forward the proposal at a time when the clouds in the republican sky were evaporating into thin air and encouraging a return of normal and tranquil conditions. Reactions following the president's declaration in his New York speech that he would urge senatorial sanction for his request to declare adherence to the world court have given the opposition much comfort and encouragement.

Senatorial critics of the scheme do not indorse the president's optimistic interpretation of the attitude of the people. Admitting that there probably was some justification that no other question of public policy had provoked "so impressive a demonstration of unified opinion," political opponents of the scheme assert that the balance of popular opinion is now rapidly crystallizing the other way.

State of National Mind.

If senatorial opinion accurately reflects the state of national mind the chances for defeating the court project are tremendously better than was the case at the same relative stage of the fight over the league of nations which created the court that the president believes to be the United States should join. For one thing, there is actual definite and organized leadership in the senate against the president's proposal.

Up to date not a republican in the senate has publicly volunteered to take up the cudgels for it. A considerable number of senators who proclaim themselves quite good republicans publicly have expressed their disapproval of it and indicated their purpose to fight it from start to finish because they are convinced of the soundness of that democratic appraisal of the president's plan as being a gesture to enter the league of nations "through the back door."

Mr. Borah, Mr. Moses, Mr. Watson, Mr. La Follette, Mr. McCormack, all of the foreign relations committee, and many more republicans who are not on the committee have expressed their disapproval of the scheme. At the outset of the fight against the league of nations only seven republican senators and five on the democratic side engaged to oppose its ratification. Today not less than a favorable disposition to the court project are opposing themselves there are at least twice that number of republican senators who will be found waging war at every phase of the coming fight against the court.

toward it are influenced by considerations not entirely dissociated from the suggestion.

Depend on Estimate.

The president's supporters are convinced that he will depend on the public and senatorial estimate of the merits of his proposal and not upon any of the agencies connected with his executive authority for control of political rewards. With respect to the aspect of the controversy provoked by the president's belief that the league of nations would provide the most helpful vehicle toward permanent peace and amicable foreign relations, even the critics of the court concur in the opinion that the fight will be frankly and openly fought over the merits and not because of parochial reasons of a factional partisan character.

Proponents and opponents of the league of nations court proposal express the hope that the controversy will not be characterized by the same bitterness which attended the wrangle over the Versailles treaty. Some opponents, however, are prepared for the worst. This is made apparent by the determination of Mr. Borah, Mr. Moses, Mr. McCormack and others to lose no time in forcing the fighting by immediately placing before the country what they intend shall be a logical portrait of the undesirable national consequences which they hold will result from adoption of the president's suggestion.

While no attempt has been made to reduce to even terms the many qualifications to govern American participation in the league of nations court, it is quite probable that there will be no shortage of such suggestions. The initial undertaking of the opposition, however, will be to arouse public sentiment against the court project as a whole. The senators opposing the plan are not only convinced that they can build up such a case against the court scheme that the question of reservations or qualifying conditions will be of little or no importance.

Amplify Qualifications.
If their confidence is misplaced in this respect, it is palpably the purpose of the opposition to amplify the qualifications demanded by the president and give the United States absolute independence of action so far as the league of nations is concerned.

The attitude of democratic senators is predicated on the belief that the final action of the senate will vindicate the policy of the Wilson administration. Republican critics of the plan do not hesitate to predict that if the recommendation of the president is approved by the republicans in the senate it will be accompanied by such limitation as will deprive nearly if not all of the present democratic support, which is actually more nominal than real.

The democratic minority, in fact, has not committed itself to any policy regarding the treatment of the court plan. Its implied support of the project is purely a tactical desire to contribute to a irritation of the majority and cause a breach in that quarrel which would prove of democratic advantage.

Democratic spokesmen in the senate exercise extreme wariness in their gestures to aggravate their republican opponents and opponents of the court scheme. They are careful to see which way the republican cat will jump before disclosing "their hand." It is the opinion of democratic leaders that the republicans will not be so foolish as to precipitate a renewal of the battle over the league of nations itself.

Doubt Sincerity.
There is considerable doubt as to the sincerity of some democratic senators who are engaged in the republican groups. Republican critics of the court plan assert there would not be democratic unity in supporting a proposal to enter the league of nations by the front door. In proof of this they point to the demand made by the democratic candidates for the senate in the last year that the republican controversy precipitate a renewal of the battle over the league of nations itself.

In proof of this they point to the demand made by the democratic candidates for the senate in the last year that the republican controversy precipitate a renewal of the battle over the league of nations itself.

The program of the opposition will be formulated during the next week or two. Senator Moses, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, who has just returned from Europe with an even more unfavorable opinion of the world court plan than when he went away, came to Washington today. The New Hampshire senator denied that he would act as the senator for a presidential boom for Senator Hiram Johnson, who is in Europe. He said he knew nothing of the California senator's reported plan to oppose Mr. Harding as a presidential candidate with the court project as the issue.

Described as "Bunk."
Senator Moses also described as "bunk" the report that he might join a third party if the president insisted on pressing his court proposal. He scoffed at the suggestion that a scheme could be worked out to divorce the court from the league of nations.

"The people of Europe do not hold that view," he said, "because they know that the court was established as one of the most important branches of the league of nations. They know that the judges are elected by the league and are paid out of the league funds. When I reached home in Concord a few days after my trip to Europe I was astonished at the mass of mail awaiting me there. Most of it related to the league of nations court proposal, and 99 per cent of it expressed bitter opposition."

The New Hampshire senator expressed the opinion that democratic hope for a republican division over the court plan would prove abortive. He predicted that his party would solve the problem in a satisfactory manner and that President Harding would be reelected without opposition.

Peach Sponge.
One-half box gelatin, 1 1/2 cup sugar, 4 eggs, 1 dozen peaches, 1/2 cup water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Soak the gelatin for two hours. Peel and slice the peaches, add sugar

Steamed Suet Pudding.
One cup molasses, 1 cup seeded and chopped raisins, 2 cups flour, 1 cup of suet, 1 teaspoon of soda, 2 eggs, 1 scant teaspoon salt.

Slightly warm and stir together the molasses and suet which has been freed from strings and chopped fine. Sift the soda and salt with the flour, mix in the raisins and add the whole to the molasses and suet. Beat two eggs light, add to the warmed mixture, season with cinnamon and nutmeg. Pour into a buttered mold and steam nearly three hours. Cherries are very good cooked in suet pudding, substituting cherries for raisins. Serve with any kind of pudding sauce.

BEAUTY CHATS

BY EDNA K. FORBES

OTHER DRY SHAMPOOS.
Few books on beauty culture make any mention of dry shampooing, and few beauty shops give dry shampoos, yet the only way for the woman with extraordinarily oily hair to keep attractive is to make almost weekly use of a dry shampoo.

There are various methods. One way is to use gasoline. Certain expensive beauty shops give these gasoline or benzene shampoos in special little rooms shut off from the rest of the shop, well ventilated and lighted with electricity. If you are going to do this yourself you had better do it outdoors, or in a room closed from the rest of the house, with the windows open. You must not, of course, come anywhere near an open flame until the odor evaporates, which it will do in a short time. You need not mind being outdoors, for you cannot possibly catch cold, as benzene closes the pores.

Let the hair hang, soak a piece of flannel or some absorbent cotton with the gasoline, rub it thoroughly along the parting of the hair. Part in a new place and repeat until you have covered the scalp. Rub again thoroughly, wiping over the hair from the roots to the ends with the wet flannel.

The gasoline cleans all dust and greasy dirt from the hair and scalp more quickly and quite as effectively as soap and water. It dries almost immediately, so the shampoo takes no time at all. It will not dry the hair too much, as alcohol or strong soap would, and it leaves it beautifully soft and very glossy. The scalp will feel cold while the gasoline is wet on it, but that will not be unpleasant. Shaking the hair with the hands in the warm sun or wind will soon take away all odor. This shampoo can be

MRS. LINDQUIST TELLS WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Kansas City, Mo.—"I was left in a very serious condition after childbirth and no one thought I could ever be any better. Then came the 'Change of Life' and I was not prepared for what I had to suffer. I had to go to bed at times to be perfectly quiet as I could not stoop down to pick anything from the floor. I did not suffer any pain, but I was decidedly nervous and could not sleep. For nearly two years I was this way, and the doctor was frank enough to tell me that he could do no more for me. Shortly after this I happened to see in a newspaper an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a few days the medicine was in the house and I had begun its use and I took it regularly until I was well. I recommended the Vegetable Compound to others when I have the opportunity."—Mrs. MAY LINDQUIST, 2814 Independence Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

A JAUNTY SPORTS STYLE

4369. Here is a youthful model suggestive of the season, and its beautiful fabrics. Figured silk in blue and tan tones was used for the blouse. The facings on collar and revers and the linings are of tan. The skirt is of tan camel's hair woolen. Crepe linen or gingham and linen could be used for this style.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 36, 38 and 40 years. An 18 year size requires 1 7/8 yards for the blouse and 3 3/8 yards for the skirt of 40-inch material. The width at the foot of the skirt is 2 3/4 yards, with flits extended. To trim blouse as illustrated, 1 4 yard 40 inches wide is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

AN UP-TO-DATE ATTRACTIVE COSTUME

4097. Comfortable and practical is the development of this style. The skirt with its slenderizing plait fullness, is mounted on an underbody. The blouse long of line, and with a smart vest finish, may have its sleeve short or in wrist length. This model is excellent for silk, kasha, crepe, and for linen and other wash fabrics. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 5 1/4 yards of 32-inch material. To make underbody, sleeve facings and the formula for the eyelash tonic if you send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

Discouraged Woman.—Hair tonics are for the scalp and the roots of the hair, so all that you use beside this is wasted. The Pilocarpine tonic does not stain the hair, its action is to stimulate the color cells and build up the health of the scalp.

The mixture of sage and sulphur merely tints the grey hair to the shade of straw, if you wish a stain that is dark brown a strong tea made by steeping walnut shells will make a harmless coloring for the hair.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

May Fete at Wingfield on Saturday Afternoon

The annual May fete of the Sheltering Arms association will be given on the lawn at Wingfield, the home of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Slaton, on Peachtree road.

The guests will be seated on the lawn near the formal gardens while the interesting program will be given, in which the children of nurseries sponsored by the association will take part. The kindergarten teachers are in charge of the program and a May-pole dance and a flower play will be featured. Mrs. Alice Hentz and Mrs. J. J. Hanahan will assist in arranging the details of the program.

Mrs. Spiker will conclude the program with special dances by several charming children of her classes. Refreshments will be served at attractive booths under the management of the Cornelia Moore nursery board, with Mrs. Joel Hurt, Jr., chairman. Mrs. E. C. Seiple is chairman of general decorations, and Mrs. Wilmer Moore, with the services of little Miss Jacqueline Moore, will distribute tiny grab bags of candy and toys to the children of the nurseries.

The rainy day boxes, usually distributed or collected at this annual fete of the Sheltering Arms nurseries, will be replaced this year by the unique plan of a rummage check or tag, which has been adopted in an effort to realize a fund for the babies without any expense to the individual member. A letter of explanation will be sent out with this check, and the entire plan promises to be most successful.

There will be no charges or sales of any kind at the May fete. It is purely a social affair for the mothers and children of the nurseries and the members and friends of the organization. Any member receiving an invitation may bring a guest or friend by notifying the invitation committee, that seats may be provided.

Mrs. Slaton, hostess, will be assisted by the past presidents of the Sheltering Arms and members of the executive board including Mrs. Preston Arkwright, Mrs. Frank Logan, Mrs. W. S. Elkin, Mrs. Bolling Jones, Mrs. Robert C. Alston, Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. William Kiser, Mrs. Gilbert Fraser, Mrs. E. E. Dallas, Mrs. W. D. Ellis, Jr., Mrs. Walter Colquhoun, Mrs. Frank West. HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Good Either Way.
Hard-boiled egg and watercress, covered liberally with mayonnaise dressing, make a delicious salad or filling for sandwiches.

New Shoes for New Babies.
Laced shoes are very much better for the baby who is learning to walk than button ones, for the valuable ankle support they give them.

Fudge.
When mailing fudge to anyone, wrap each piece in waxed paper before putting it in a box. It is the only way to insure it against getting stale and becoming hard.

An Attractive Table.
Don't spoil the appearance of your dinner table by putting jars, bottles and boxes on it. The contents of these can be so readily placed in a dainty dish and put back in the original containers after the meal is over.

The Kiddie's Party.
An entertaining centerpiece for the table at the children's party is a large imitation pie made out of cardboard. Inside the pie is a toy or game for each child, with a string attached leading to the child's place at the table. At a signal the strings are pulled and the favors come to view.

Dance at Austell.

The next of the regular Saturday night dances to be held at Luther Springs hotel, Austell, will be given Saturday night, May 19. Music by Warren-Davis Southerners.

THE VITAL FLAME

BY MAY CHRISTIE

A Stirring Serial of Primitive Passions

CHAPTER LXVIII.

"The Fatal Initials."

Graves went on, as though the words were torn from him: "I did hear young Mr. Holden say something about—about being—"

"Yes. Go on. Don't be afraid to speak right out."

"About being ready to kill Mr. Treman, and be damned to the consequences," gulped the unfortunate butler, on the rack. (He had liked Mr. Holden, and it seemed like treason to a friend to talk this way.)

"Indeed! What else?" More rapid jottings with the pencil.

"Something about rascals like—Mr. Treman, not being fit to be allowed to live."

"Lady Warrington was pale with astonishment and incredulity. "But there was no reason for a quarrel to occur between the two," she asked. "They met in my house in England, and quite liked each other."

(How little she knew! reflected poor Marcella, trembling.)

The police official took no notice of the interruption. He went on: "Did you go into the room again?"

"No, sir, I waited outside for perhaps five minutes."

"You didn't hear the sound of a shot?"

"Oh, no. The two gentlemen grew quieter. I went downstairs and waited in the hall to let Mr. Holden out. He never came. Time passed. Then I went back into the room, to get a sandwich, being hungry."

"How long were you in the pantry?"

"Maybe ten minutes. Maybe a little more. The clock in the hall struck 12. I remember, when I went back, thinking Mr. Holden had let himself out. I looked the front door and lo! it was closed."

"The other thought a moment, then he said: "Were the windows and doors of the kitchen premises, and indeed all the other windows, fastened?"

"Downstairs. Yes, sir. Cook was out with her young man until 10:30 o'clock. Then I looked the place up, after she'd come in."

"I see." A pause. "And the front door had been locked, but Mr. Holden called? You looked it again after you thought he had gone away?"

"I did, sir. Then I went to bed. But I was uneasy. I couldn't sleep. At last I rose and went up past Mr. Treman's room. Through the crack under the door I saw the light still burning. So I knocked."

"Yes. Go on." The man of law was making quick entries in his notebook. "What then?"

"I got no answer. So I turned the handle, and went in. What I saw, you already know, sir." And Graves gave an uncontrollable shudder.

"You found Mr. Treman lying on the floor, a wound in the chest?"

"Yes, sir. He was dead, sir."

"All right, Graves. That will do just now." The man put the notebook into his pocket, turning to Lady Warrington. "I sent a couple of my men over to the inn, to make inquiries. They telephoned that Holden was there, and are bringing him over. They ought to be here by now."

A ring came to the front-door bell. He went to open it. "This way!" Miles Holden looked very white, but was outwardly composed. In a few words, the captain of police gave him Graves' deposition.

"You were the last person that we know of, to visit the murdered man," he said, finally. "I understand there was a quarrel? Is that so?"

"Miles loved his head in assent. "There was."

"You made some threatening remarks," he repeated what the butler had overheard. "You admit making them? Be very careful what you say, you know."

Miles held his head up squarely. "I do admit making them. I had every justification. He was going out. And what was that?" rapped out the other quickly, seizing on the chance.

The young man hesitated. Marcella, standing nearby and within earshot, trembled like a leaf. He saw her tremble, and it braced him. "The matter is a private one. I can't tell you."

The captain of police smiled wryly. "No doubt you'll explain more fully at the inquest. The coroner's court is a great place for secrets to be brought to light."

Marcella gave a smothered cry. The inquest went on: "Now, tell me, what time did you leave the deceased?" He brought his notebook out again. "Do you remember?"

"About half-past eleven, I should think. I'm not certain."

"The window's only six feet from the ground. It was open. I wanted to get away at once. I jumped—"

From a pocket of his coat the man or woman drew forth a shining weapon and held it out to Miles.

"This was found in the long grass near the window. I suggest you dropped it."

Miles drew back, as though astonished. "A revolver? I had no revolver on me! What do you mean?" Then, looking at it more closely:

"Good lord! Where did you say it came from?"

The captain of police watched him keenly. "Look at the initials, 'M. H.' They're yours, all right. The revolver is your property, isn't it?"

Miles was staring at it as though hypnotized. Carefully he lifted it and turned it round. The initials "M. H." were quite visible to all.

"Yes," he said blankly. "It's my revolver, right enough!"

What Women Wear

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Little Separate Jackets Present Themselves in Alluring Variety For Your Spring Wardrobe.

The little jacket plays a leading role in the wardrobe of this spring. It may serve as a sort of first aid in the struggle for smart and economical dressing—or it may lie as a stumbling block in your path.

Don't think that you can buy a number of little jackets of various colors, fabrics and cuts just at random and then have them on hand to make use of with this skirt or that, various sorts of blouses and different sorts of frocks. Don't think that by toppling off a last season's frock with one of the new jackets you have achieved up-to-date smartness.

The only safe way to proceed is to regard any one of these possible jackets as an integral part of some costume that you are assembling. It is very necessary this year to plan your raiment from the heel of your slipper to the rim of your hat as part of a definite picture, for hats and shoes are showing an affinity this season, and sometimes hats and shoes instead of wearing the so-called "weaker sex." Some men seemingly feel that such chivalry was suitable only when women were kept in a closed apartment, when they did not mingle with men in business and civic affairs. Though they may continue to treat them with chivalrous respect they seem to do so grudgingly.

If you want to be judged a well-bred man always rise to give a woman your seat in any public conveyance. If you are old or infirm you are exempt from this rule, otherwise rise you must—or be judged by the world as rude and uncouth.

You need not always take your hat off in an elevator when women are present. The usage differs in different sections of the country in this matter. In most northern cities the rule seems to be that in business buildings men do not remove their hats, while in an elevator in a hotel or theater they should.

The well-bred man never keeps his seat when a woman talks to him standing. If you are in a restaurant dining alone, with men or with a woman, and a woman, alone or accompanied, recognizes you and stops to talk to you or one of your companions, you should instantly rise and remain standing until she has finished talking.

In general men follow women when they must go single file. However a man gets out of a car first in order to assist her in alighting. The old rule has it that a man should always precede a woman in going upstairs, and there are well-bred men today who hold to this old-fashioned usage.

plemented Hugo, adding coyly, "Little crosspatch?"

"I'm sorry."

"I wonder if the dressmaker can run up in time for your wedding. Alice? I think she will be ready, soon. Shouldn't you lie down and rest for a few moments, Jean?"

She took him by the hand and led him away. There were tears in her eyes and her lips twitched nervously. "Way did she need always to be so worried?"

"You are kind, Hugo dear," she whispered when they were out of earshot. "But suppose something happens and you don't get that money?"

No she was beginning all over again, and Hugo refused to speak to her. And through tea he sat and watched her with mood, eyes. Several times she stopped herself on the point of asking him what he was thinking about. He might have told her, and it might so easily be something that she did not want him to say before Alice. For over two weeks she had been spared the particular worry of what he might say before Alice. But Alice was now living in a dream world and not nearly so attentive to little things as she had been. Alice's world was made of pearls and lace and yards of soft white satin, of love letters, of the ring on her finger and that other ring soon to be added to it, of wedding bells and all things bright and beautiful. And in that world she moved and had her being.

"Let me see—we leave for Genoa on Wednesday," mused Hugo, forgetting that Jean, in one way and another, was causing him quite a lot of annoyance. "This is Saturday. I suppose I'll hear from Mercier's bank long before Wednesday. Probably on Tuesday."

So it was worrying him, too. Jean was convinced that she herself would not be able to get a wink of sleep until they heard.

The wedding preparations rolled on, gathering fearful impetus as the day drew near. Alice lived in her dream, and Jean in a whirlwind. A talent for needlework was discovered in Hugo, who made some clever rosettes of ribbon for one of Alice's frocks and helped to drape the embroidered shawl for Jean's dress. He also made a big black lace hat for Jean which was wonderfully becoming.

On the surface they were a happy, if somewhat overworked family. Gaunt helped with the rather haphazard housekeeping which went on during this period. That is, he saw that they had enough to eat; and he was always bobbing in and out. The farmer of Monte Nero could no longer be called a recluse. His interest in the Villa Modesta did not pass unremarked in the English colony, which would have been glad to see a little more of him had he chosen to be sociable. Consequently, Jean was more bothered with callers than she liked. For Louisa always said that she and the conversation concerning money between him and Mrs. Egan, which had been overheard by the knitting brigade. They wanted to know so many things, but there was no one kind enough to return their curiosity. During their calls Hugo and his needlework were kept well in the background. But there was always the fear that he would escape and present himself, and in that case he might so easily yield to the blandishments of the news-seeking couple.

Hugo, however, allowed himself to be kept in the background, which was as worrying as it was gratifying. There was something on his mind, and as the days passed he drooped more and more, finally taking to an isolated corner of the terrace with the yards of dish towel hanging from his fingers. He hid himself behind a flowering shrub and sat for hours tailor-wise with crossed legs on the edge of the terrace, where he could look far out to sea and on two occasions had a quite distinct view of Corsica. He even forgot to eat his meals, and his eyes, in consequence, arranged themselves at the erratic angle they were always striving to achieve, wearing a naughty, satisfied air of having beaten him in their mutual conflict. No doubt about it, Hugo was depressed and his state of mind was all the more evident to Jean because, when roused, he assumed an air of false gaiety.

Truly The "Aristocrat" of Coffees

When Hearts Command

BY ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

A great light gleamed in Hugo's eyes—rings for Jean; heaps of them! That was true. Jean's hands were just made for rings. Jean hastily choked off the flow of mad suggestion.

"We mustn't let Uncle John spend another penny," she said, crossly. "He won't have anything left if he goes on like this."

Hugo glared and thrust his hands into his pockets. "Your mother!" he spat out, in sheer, awful disgust.

But Alice finally restored him to good humor. They went off together to her room and spread everything out on the bed, deciding which was for Jean and which was for the little bride. Most of it turned out to be for the bride, since Jean had behaved so badly and Hugo thought it just as well to teach her a lesson.

Things got to talking about Jean, in the privileged way assumed by close relatives. Alice stood up for her mother, but at the same time there were little holes here and there which one admitted could be picked in even so fine a fabric. For instance, mumsy did worry a lot and was apt to cross bridges before they were actually in sight; and of late this tendency seemed to have grown worse, instead of better.

"She's getting old," grumbled Hugo. That's what it is. "Old and set." He was determined to insult Jean in every way he could think of.

Alice laughed. "Mumsy old! Why, Uncle John, she's only thirty-eight or nine. But I'll admit I never noticed how young she was until we came to Bordighera. Uncle John, do you think mumsy will ever marry again?"

Hugo started so violently that his eye glasses tumbled off. "I never thought about it all," he replied as he stooped to retrieve them.

"Because," Alice went on, fingering one of the exquisitely embroidered shawls, her dreamy gaze wandering out across the palm trees to the sea, "she's bound to be lonely when I'm married."

"There's me," snapped Hugo, his voice shrilly defensive.

"Yes, of course. But, after all, you're only her brother, and you mightn't care to stay with her forever."

"Humph!" he exclaimed. "I know what you're thinking. You're thinking that that old windbag, Gaunt, has his eye on her."

Alice laughed merrily. "But I thought you were a great admirer of Mr. Gaunt's. Don't pretend you're not, Uncle John. You know you simply worship him."

"Do you?" Hugo asked, jealously. "I think he's awfully nice. There's something about him—I can't describe it—he makes me feel a little wifely. Mumsy and he are both such lovely people, and once I'm sure they were tremendously fond of each other. Mr. Gaunt is in love with her now. I'm sure of it."

"And your mother?"

"She likes him, doesn't she?"

Hugo looked pained. "So do I. Nothing the matter with Gaunt, nothing really the matter with him, at all. But your mother won't marry him—not she."

At this point Jean, who was never easy a moment when Hugo and Alice were alone together, intruded upon their speculations as to her future. Had she herself been so nearly caught by some one under such intimate discussion her face would have betrayed her, but Hugo and Alice turned to her the bland smiles of perfect innocence.

"We're just dividing all the pretty things," Alice said.

"And you're to have a frock made of the two ivory colored shawls," suggested

MARCHING SANDS

BY HAROLD LAMB

NEXT WEEK: BEAU RAND
BY CHARLES ALDEN SELTZER

"Word was sent to me from Wu Fang Chien—who had heard the news from a Chinese servant of the American Museum of Natural History—that an expedition was being fitted out to explore central Mongolia. I was ordered to volunteer to accompany it."

"And did you best to wreck the expedition?" asked Gray.

"I liked you, Capt. Gray. I tried to persuade you to turn back. At Lianchowfu it was too late. When you escaped from Wu Fang Chien there, he held me responsible for the failure. The priesthood never trusted me fully."

"In my religion," said Gray grimly, "there is a saying that a man cannot serve two masters and save his own soul."

"The priesthood," he muttered, "will not forgive failure. Wu Fang Chien is watching me. You can do nothing here. Go back, before we are seen together. Sungan is nothing but a leper colony. You were a fool to think otherwise."

"And the Wusun?"

"Lepers! They are the only ones here except the priests."

"Gray's eyes hardened.

"Lie, Delabar. Why should Wu Fang Chien kill a dozen men to keep the English caravan and myself from Sungan?" He caught and held Delabar's startled gaze. "Where is Mary Hastings?"

"I—who is she?"

"You know, Delabar. The girl who came with the caravan. She was taken prisoner. Where is she?"

"I don't know."

Gray touched his automatic significantly.

"I want to know," he said quietly. "And you can tell me. It is more important than my life or your miserable existence. Where is Mary Hastings?"

Delabar covered before the deadly purpose in the white man's eyes.

"I don't know, Capt. Gray. Wu Fang Chien ordered that when the caravan was attacked she should be brought to him. He killed her, but took her to him. Some of the priests seized her and took her to one of the inner courts of the city. At the time, Wu Fang Chien was directing the attack on the caravan. I have not seen her since."

"Where is this inner court?"

"You are a fool. You could not possibly get into the city without being seen. Wu Fang Chien would be glad to see you. I heard him say if the girl was spared you would come here after her. He knew all that happened at Lianchowfu."

"Then she is alive?" Gray's pulses leaped. "So my friend Wu is keeping the girl as bait for my coming. A clever man, Wu Fang Chien. But how did he know I would come here?"

"The Englishman was followed back to where he met you. If he had been killed in the fighting here I think Wu Fang Chien planned to send me to bring you here."

"Yes, he is clever," Gray studied the matter with knitted brows. "So Wu wants to kill me off, now that I have come this far—as he did the men of the caravan? Look here! Does he know I'm near Sungan? Were you put here as bait?"

"No," Delabar shook his head. "The men who were sent to attack you—the Chinese soldiers hired by Wu Fang Chien—lost track of you. Wu Fang Chien does not know where you are—yet. If he should find you here talking to me, it would be his death. I—I have learned too much of the fate of the Hastings. Oh, they were fools. Why should they have wanted to pry into what is hidden from them? Go back! You can do nothing for the girl."

Gray stared at the Buddhist curiously.

"You haven't learned much decency from your religion, Delabar. So the outer guards failed to make good, eh? By the way, how is it that they leave camel tracks in the sand?"

"They wear camels' hoofs instead of shoes. Hoofs cut from dead wild camels that the Chinese hunters kill for our food—for the lepers. It helps them to walk on the sand and mystifies the wandering Kirghiz. Why do you want to throw your life away?"

"I don't," Gray sat down and produced some of his flour cakes. "I want to get out of Sungan with a whole skin, and with Mary Hastings. He munched the cakes calmly, washing down the mouthfuls with water from his canteen. "And I'm going to get to the inner courts of Sungan. You're going to guide me. If we're discovered, remember you'll be the first man to die. Now, Delabar, I want a good description of Sungan, its general plan and the habits of your Buddhist friends."

After nightfall Gray and Delabar started toward Sungan. The American feeling Delabar against his wishes to take him through the underground passages. They near a temple when Delabar yells for help. Many priests come in a moment. Gray finds himself almost surrounded and fights. Wu Fang Chien seated near, Delabar protesting that he did not bring Gray to this meeting place, is dragged before the Chairman, who orders him slain, and he is quickly stabbed to death.

Gray draws his automatic, shoots down two of the priests and tries to kill Wu, but the Wusun Chinaman brushes out the candles and in the darkness Gray flees. He stumbles up the steps into a corridor and from that into another vaulted room. The priests following him.

Gray was picking his way blindly through the labyrinth of passages. He blundered into a wall heavily felt his way around a corner and was blinded by a sudden glare of lights.

Gray found himself standing in a lofty hall in which a multitude of men were seated.

His first impression was that he had come into the council of the Buddhist priests. His second was one of sheer surprise.

The temple was underground. Openings in the vaults of the ceiling let in a current of air which caused the candles around the walls to flicker. Directly in front of Gray was a dais. Around this, on ebony benches, an array of men were seated.

The floor between him and the dais was covered with seated forms. All were looking at him. On the platform was not the figure of a god, but a massive chair of carved sandalwood. In this chair was seated an old man. A majestic form, clothed in a robe of lamb's wool which view in whiteness with the beard that descended to the man's waist. Each sleeve of the robe was bound at the elbow by a broad circlet of gold. A chain of the same metal was about the man's throat.

What struck Gray was the splendid physique of the elder in the chair. A pair of dark eyes peered at him under tufted brows. High cheek bones stood out prominently in the pale skin. The figure and face were suggestive of power; yet the fire in the eyes bespoke unrest, even melancholy. The man addressed Gray at once, in a full voice that echoed through the hall.

"Who comes," the voice said in broken Chinese, "to the assembly of the Wusun?"

Gray started. He glanced from the figure in the chair to the others. There were several hundred men in the room. All were dressed in sheepskin and nankeen, with boots of horsehide or mud moccasins. The majority were bearded, but all showed the same light skin and well shaped head. They appeared spellbound at his coming.

Footsteps behind him told him that his pursuers were nearing the hall. Gray advanced through the seated crowd to the foot of the dais. They made way for him readily.

Mechanically Gray raised his hand in greeting to the man on the throne. "A white man," he answered. "At that moment several of the Buddhist priests entered the hall. He saw Wu Fang Chien appear. At the sight there was a murmur from the throne."

Gray was still breathing heavily from his run. He stared at the majestic form on the dais. The Wusun! That was the word the other had used. The word that Van Schaick had said came from the captive race itself.

So this was the secret of Sungan. Gray smiled grimly, thinking of the Delabar had tried to conceal the truth from him—how the Buddhist had chosen to betray him rather than run the risk of hitting the Wusun!

And this explained the guards. The Wusun were, actually, a captive race. Gray was quick of wit, and this passed through his mind instantly. He noticed another thing. Wu Fang Chien had left the other priests at the entrance and was coming forward alone. The mandarin folded his arms in his sleeves and bowed gravely. For the first time he spoke the dialect of the west.

"Greetings, Bassalor Danek, Gur-Khan of the Wusun," he said gravely. "It was not my wish to disturb the assembly of the Wusun during the hour of the sunset prayer, in the festival of the new moon. I came in pursuit of an enemy—one of who has slain within the walls of Sungan. You know, O Gur-Khan, that it is forbidden to slay here. When I have taken this man I will leave in peace."

Bassalor Danek stroked the arms of the chair gently and considered the mandarin.

"Within the space of twelve moons, O Wu Fang Chien, the foot of a Buddhist priest has not been set within the boundary of my people. Here, I am master, not you. That we agreed in the covenant of my fathers and their fathers before them. You have not forgotten the covenant."

"I have not forgotten," returned the mandarin calmly. "It is to ask for the person of this murderer that I come now. When I have him I will go."

"Whom has he slain?"

"Two of my men, who watched at one of the passages."

"Have the Wusun asked that guards be placed in the passages?" Wu Fang Chien scowled, then smiled blandly.

"We were willing to seize this man person as well as mine."

Gray watched the two keenly. He had observed that many of the Wusun near Bassalor Danek were armed, after a fashion. They carried bows, and others had swords at their hips. The followers of Wu Fang Chien seemed ill at ease. Moreover, their presence in the hall appeared to anger the Wusun.

Bassalor Danek turned his thoughtful gaze on Gray.

"You have heard what Wu Fang Chien has said," he observed. "You speak his tongue. Tell me why you have come through the walls of Sungan. In the lifetime of ten men no stranger has come to Sungan before this."

Gray's head lifted decisively. "Wu Fang Chien," he responded slowly, "has said that I killed his men. Is not a crime in one man when it is not such in another? Just a little while ago the soldiers of the Chinese surprised and destroyed a caravan of my people without warning and without cause."

"They had no right to come where they did," asserted the mandarin blandly.

The white man's eyes narrowed dangerously.

"I came to find a woman of my people that you seized. She is here in Sungan."

Bassalor Danek looked up quickly. "When did she come to Sungan?"

"Several days ago. And Wu Fang Chien kept her. He planned to bring me here, in order to kill me." Gray met the gaze of the old man squarely. "This woman and I, Bassalor Khan, are descended from the same fathers as your race. We were coming to Sungan to seek you. And this man has tried to prevent that. A score of men have lost their lives because of it."

The mandarin would have spoken, but the Gur-Khan raised his hand, warning him to be silent. "This is a matter, Wu Fang Chien," he said with dignity, "that cannot be decided in a wind's breath. I will accept the stranger. I will hear his story. At this time tomorrow, after sunset, come alone to the hall and I will announce my decision. Until then I will think."

Wu Fang Chien frowned, but accepted the verdict with the calmness that was the mark of his character. "Remember, Bassalor Danek," he warned "that these people are devils from the outer world. And remember the covenant which spurs your people their lives. Sungan is in the hollow of the hand of Buddha. And Buddha is lord of Mongolia."

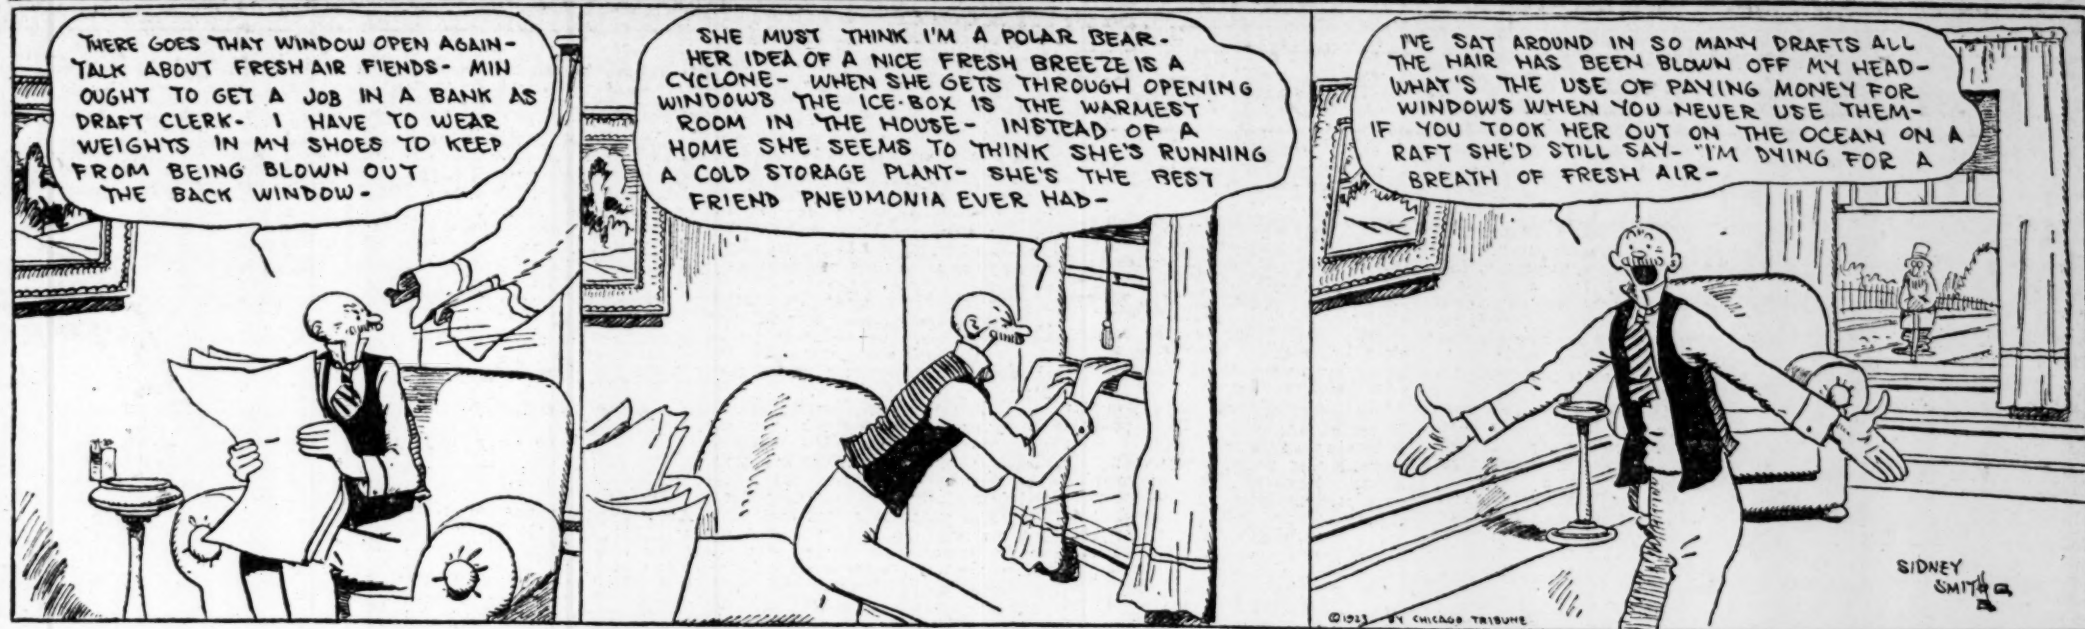

CHAPTER IX.

"Poor Uncle Lionel," she said sadly, he never knew that—the Wusun were here, as he had thought they would be.

"Truly it is strange," he mused. "Twice in one moon strangers have come before me, with the same tale on their lips. This man, and the woman that my young men took from your priests because she had the face and form of one of our race. She, also, is in my dwelling."

Though Gray asked to be taken to Mary Hastings at once, Bassalor Danek refused permission, but told him he might see her the next day. He was given food, and, his hunger satisfied, he lay down on a pile of camel skins and got his first good night's sleep in many days. The next day he was taken by guards to see Mary Hastings, who was of course, very glad to see him. When informed that Sir Lionel was dead she almost broke down and Gray realized more than ever that on him rested the responsibility of saving her.

New York, May 18.—An early decline was followed by sharp rallies in the cotton market on bullish crop advices and covering by near month shorts. July sold up from 24.96 to 25.08, or 37 points net higher, before the demand was supplied, but the market weakened later, with July closing at 25.35, or four points below Thursday's final quotation. The general market closed barely steady at a net advance of 23 points on May, but generally 4 to 50 points net lower.

The opening was easy at a decline of 24 to 25 points in response to disappointing Liverpool cables, reports of some further mill curtailment in Fall River and the favorable showing of the early weather reports. May sold off to 25.25 and October to 25.22 during the early trading, making net declines of about 30 to 36 points on the general list, but trade interests were buyers of May and July, while there was considerable covering for over the weekend and prices soon turned steadier. Advices received here from the south it was being found difficult to buy desired lots of spot cotton even at an advance in the basis, and there were also reports of an improved demand. These reports, combined with the buying of May and July contracts around the local king evidently made a considerable impression on sentiment, and May led the advance, selling up to 25.02 or 46 points net higher. New crop months were comparatively slow to join in the upward movement, and there was selling of October by buyers of July. Notwithstanding this, early losses were more than recovered, with October advancing to 25.31, or seven points net higher, but the demand for both old and new crop positions slackened during the early afternoon and the market was nervous and unsettled in the late trading.

May eased off to close at 25.35, and October closed at 25.27. Week-end figures were commented upon as rather disappointing from a bullish standpoint, spinners' takings of American as reported by the New York exchange being 152,207 against 174,044 last year and some selling was reported on the easier late ruling of stocks. Exports today nil, so far this season 4,371,106. Port receipts 3,628. U. S. spot stocks 406,118.

COTTON SELLS OFF AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, May 18.—Fluctuations today carried the price of cotton both below and above the level of yesterday's close but in the end no decided trend prevailed and the close was one point higher to 25 points lower, net for the session. July closed at 25.45 cents a pound, and October closed at 25.46. In the late trading prices were soft, with some realizing by early buyers and what looked like rather important new selling for short accounts.

The early session saw the lowest levels of the day, declines of 20 to 34 points, which carried July off to 25.10 and October off to 25.35. The selling that was responsible for this was stimulated by the dry weather over the belt, by more Liverpool and the pessimistic accounts of the dispute between Greece and Turkey. A little later, reports of rains in Louisiana and Texas commenced to come in and the forecast was more optimistic for centered showers over the greater part of the belt. On top of this there were many accounts of a better spot demand, both here and in the interior. Highest prices of the day came around mid-session when the active months were 3 to 31 points higher than the close of yesterday. July showed the most strength and traded up to 25.75. October traded up to 25.75.

The cloud burst at Beaumont helped to keep the market steady for a while but during the noon hour offerings gradually increased and the market gave ground and then, on the bullish showing of the weekly statistics had little effect on values.

Cotton Seed Oil.

New Orleans, May 18.—Except for a little show of business in August at the start, cottonseed oil prices were flat and in 15 to 20 points net higher. Shorts and futures were buyers on the bullish cotton report, which indicated that the consumption was 155,000 barrels and that stocks in all houses were 720,000 barrels. Sales, 19,000 barrels. Prime crude, 9.75 to 10.00; prime summer yellow, 11.00 to 11.20; May, 11.50; July, 11.75; September, 11.60; all bid.
